Eleven Boys Are Buried Alive

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Oct. 23.—Eleven boys were buried alive tonight under hundreds of tons of coal in a cave-in at an improvised mine shaft at Plainsville.

Three were dead when rescuers reached them, after digging for a half hour. Two were dying in a hospital from broken necks and suffocation. Six, still missing, were believed dead.

The boys were trapped attempting to steal coal from a coal bank under cover of darkness.

D. A. R. Guide To Movies To Be Shown In City

"The Fountain" — Excellent; for adults only. Love of county intensifies the romance of English patriots interned in Holland during the War. Julie, torn between love for Lewis and pity for her wounded German husband, devotes herself to Rupert. His nobility of character affects the lovers deeply. Fine characterizations by an able cast mark this thought-provoking film. A. Harding, B. Aherne, P. Lukas, Orpheum Theatre, Thursday and Friday.

"The Barretts of Wimpole Street"—Excellent; for mature (above age 14) audience. Superb characterizations by Norma Shearer, Fredric March and Chas. Lawton, a colorful setting and skillful direction make this charming 19th Century romance of England's poets a most notable production. Maureen O'Sullivan has her best role as the defiant young daughter. Liberty Theatre, Thursday and Friday.
