

WHAT'S WHAT ABOUT Social Security

11. Q. My employer says he has to keep my Social Security account number card. Can he do that?

A. No. An employer may not keep the account card of an employee. He must give it to the employee, although the employer must keep a record of the number so he can make the reports required of him by the United States Treasury.

12. Q. I am a nurse employed in a dentist's office, but he says he does not come under the Social Security law and I do not have to have a security account card. Is that so?

A. No. A dentist, engaged in private practice of his profession is an employer, within the scope of the Social Security Act, when he employs a nurse, or anyone else for any work in the course of his business. He must get an employer's identification number. For this he should get Form SS-4 from the nearest post office or Social Security Board Field Office and file it immediately. You should file immediately for an employee's account number, using Form SS-5, which you can get from your post office or your nearest Social Security Board Field Office. Make your number known to your employer.

13. Q. Does the Social Security law apply to persons under 21 years of age who are employed in covered occupations?

A. Yes.

14. Q. I am just opening up a new business. Do I have to apply for an employer's identification number?

A. Yes.

15. Q. I have just received my copy of Form SS-2a. I have several employees who do not have account numbers. What am I required to do?

A. First, ask each employee if he ever has filed an application for an account number. Any employee who has not applied for a number—using Form SS-5—should do so at once. Application form can be got from your post office or nearest Social Security Board Field Office. Second, employees who have applied, but have not received a number, should file again—using Form SS-5, paying particular attention to question 14 on that form. When they get their numbers they should make them known to you so that you can make your informational returns to the Treasury.

16. Q. I am the president of a company which promotes entertainment for church bazaars and other organizations during the summer months. In setting up the paraphernalia we employ local labor on an hourly basis. Some employees only work two or three hours. Do we have to deduct taxes from their wages and file returns for these temporary employees?

A. You do. The application of the Social Security Act and the liability of the employer to deduct and pay taxes under its provisions does not in any way depend on the length of time a worker is employed nor how little he may be paid.

News And Views From Champion

We are having some fine showers here now. Corn is looking fine and the people seem to be enjoying the good season.

We have been blessed not to have any bad storms, wrecks or other disasters in this community but are saddened to have to give up two of our good brother citizens, A. M. Foster and Irvin McNeill. But let us all live to be ready to meet our savior and dwell with him forever.

All members of Mount Pleasant Baptist church at Champion and others who are interested are asked to meet at the church Thursday of this week and Thursday of next, July 15 and 22, for the purpose of shaping up the cemetery. Those who cannot be present are asked to send a hand or $1.00 to employ someone. Tools needed will include scythes, wheelbarrows, rakes and lawnmowers. Don't forget the dates.—Reported.

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE TO NORTH CAROLINIANS—No. 1

Our New RESPONSIBILITY

PURSUANT to a special act of the 1937 State Legislature, advertisements will shortly begin to appear in national magazines and metropolitan newspapers of the East, Middle West and South inviting visitors and tourists to North Carolina, "THE VARIETY VACATIONLAND." These messages will reach a total of nineteen million families. Thousands of business executives directing the manufacture and sale of products that could be made more profitably in North Carolina will be invited to visit the State and study our industrial advantages. The leading farm papers of the country will carry the story of North Carolina's opportunity for diversified and profitable farming and many well-to-do farmers will be seeking farmlands in North Carolina.

Let us put our house in order. Every citizen of the State and every community must cooperate if North Carolina is to reap the maximum results and the increased prosperity that will come from our advertising. Let our communities put on bright, clean faces. Let us beautify our highways. Let every North Carolinian greet visitors to the State with the spirit of hospitality for which North Carolina is justly famous. Let our Police Forces and other Peace Officers exert every effort to be friendly, courteous, and obliging to the "Stranger within our Gates." Let each and everyone of us assume our new responsibility in North Carolina's March of Progress.
