ACT CHALLENGED

Fayetteville, June 30.—The constitutionality of the fair labor standards act is questioned in the answer of Central Weaving and Spinning company to a suit filed here by James Miller as agent for 44 employees of the company. The answer denies allegations that the employees did not receive proper wages, and contends that the application of the wages and hours law to the defendant would violate the fifth and 10th amendments to the national constitution.

McNUTT IN RING

Indianapolis, June 30.—Indiana Democrats acclaimed their favorite son for the 1940 presidential nomination—47-year-old, white-haired Paul V. McNutt—in a festive homecoming celebration today on his return from his post as United States high commissioner to the Philippine Islands. A cheering, flag-waving crowd, estimated by reception officials at 15,000, stood under a blazing sun in historic Monument circle two hours to welcome the former governor and hear him voice a plea for world peace.

GIRL, 2 MEN DROWN

East Rutherford, N. J., June 30.—The body of a 12-year-old girl, who was swept into a culvert during a heavy downpour of rain, and the body of one of two men, who made vain attempts at rescue, were identified tonight two hours after being taken from a sewer. Mrs. Gertrude Kostomih is hysterically told police the body of the girl was that of her daughter, Sophie. Superintendent of Public Works John O'Connor identified one of the men as William Strigleman, 46, an employee of the public works department. The third body was not identified.

NO DIVERSION FUNDS

Raleigh, June 30.—With general fund tax receipts exceeding estimates by $2,117,102.64, North Carolina tonight closed out the 1938-39 fiscal year without diverting money from highway routes. Governor Hooey announced this afternoon that the "healthy condition" of general fund finances would make diversion unnecessary. Under state law, he was authorized to transfer up to $2,000,000. If needed, from the highway fund to the general fund during 1938-39. The diversion was not contemplated to balance the general fund during 1938-39, but rather to provide a surplus of $2,200,000 in the fund at the start of 1939-40. The fact that tax receipts ran well above estimates, however, insured the surplus without diversion.

DOG ALARM FAILS

Wilson, June 30.—A North Carolina hound that acted as guardian of a Wilson county liquor still and barked at the approach of strangers and officers to let its master know they were coming and give him time to get away, gave the signal too late yesterday and Jesse Page, Wilson county man, was arrested on charge of operating a still in the Oldfields section of the county. Page was placed under $100 bond pending a hearing on the charge in county court in the near future. According to Deputy J. W. Brown the dog had been trained to bark at officers to let the moonshiners know when "enemies" were around. As the officers waited at the still the dog came into sight and let up a howl but Page was apparently too close behind him and was arrested before he could get away.

DAM IS POSTPONED

The city of High Point, which has encountered many difficulties in its persistent efforts to manufacture its own electric power, Friday found a real stumbling block in its way when Resident Judge H. Hoyle Sink, of Superior court, after two months of special hearings, signed an order restraining the municipality "from any further activities, operation, development, advancement or continuation of the proposed hydroelectric project." Counsel for the city gave notice of appeal to the state Supreme court. The order was granted plaintiffs in the two suits against the city after the court had found as a fact that "the Yadkin-Pee Dee river in North Carolina," on which High Point proposed to build a $6,500,000 power plant, "is not now and never has been, either by itself or by uniting with other waters, capable of navigation for the movement of trade and traffic in interstate or foreign commerce. The said river, both in its natural condition and in its present condition, is now and always has been a non-navigable river

State Allots 261 Wilkes Teachers; Increase Over '38

Possibility Additional Teachers If Enrollment High In Schools

N. WILKESBORO GETS 31 New High Record Number For State, 24,336, Made By Commission

The State school commission through Lloyd Griffin, executive secretary, has allotted a total of 24,336 teachers for the state, which represents a new record high.

Wilkes county received in the allotment 261 teachers, which represents an increase of four over the final allotment of 257 for the 1938-39 term.

There is a possibility that enrollment in several schools may justify additional teachers. It was learned today from C. B. Eller, superintendent of the Wilkes school system.

North Wilkesboro city schools, which operate as a city charter unit and separately from the county system, was allotted 31 teachers, the same number as were employed last year.

Of the 261 allotment for Wilkes county schools, 42 are white high school teachers, 198 white elementary school teachers, six negro high school teachers and 12 negro elementary school teachers.

Merchants Prepare For Big Sales Event

Sales Will Open Here On Friday

Death Drivers To Stage Thrill Shows at Fairground Friday Night

Many North Wilkesboro merchants are busily engaged in preparation for the city-wide July clearance sales event which will open on Friday morning, July 7.

In the sales event merchants will sacrifice profits in clearance of stocks of summer goods in short order and unusually low prices will be in effect from opening day until the merchandise is disposed of.

As a special added attraction, the opening day of the sales event will be climaxed Friday evening, seven o'clock, by Thrill Shows to be put on at the fairgrounds by Tony Kivett and his "Death Drivers."

The show, which was scheduled for the first time in North Wilkesboro by the merchants and at great expense, will consist of some of the most thrilling and death-defying stunts known to operators of motor vehicles.

There will be crashes, smash-ups, chills and spills and in the midst of it all the man who has torn up scores of cars will give a safety talk, telling how to drive automobiles without injury to drivers or others.

There will be such stunts as auto collisions, turnovers, crashes, burning wall crashes and some hairraising stunts on motorcycles.

The shows will represent the first time that such attractions have ever been scheduled for showing in North Wilkesboro and are expected to attract a record crowd.

$1.05 Estimated Rate For 1939 County Taxes Budget Figures Studied

Estimated Rate Based on Valuation $14,671,150; Real Estate Shows Increase; Personal Property Decreases

Although no budget has been adopted and the tax rate has not been definitely set, Wilkes county taxes for 1939 are being collected temporarily at the estimated rate of $1.05 on each hundred dollars valuation, a decrease of one cent under the 1938 tax rate.

C. G. Poindexter, Wilkes county accountant who accepts prepayment of taxes, said that the board of county commissioners had made a study of the budget and had authorized prepayment of taxes at the rate of $1.05, which is expected to be finally adopted. A three-cent railroad bond tax will make the tax rate for North Wilkesboro township $1.08 compared with $1.09 in 1938. Mr. Poindexter, who is also county tax supervisor, said that the total assessed valuation for the county will be approximately the same as last year. With some few adjustments to be made, the total valuation now stands at $14,671,150, which is about $5,000 under last year's figures but does not include the corporation excess to be set by the state.

Totalling the tax books for all townships in the county showed an increase in real estate valuations of $177,000 but there was a decrease in personal property of approximately $186,000. Number of persons listed for poll tax showed an increase of about 600.

Many On Waiting List For Old Age Help In Wilkes

Funds Allotted By State Not Sufficient To Care For All Eligibles

MORE CASES APPROVED

County's Allotment For Aid To Dependent Children Is Already Filled

According to information from state welfare authorities, the state allotment of public assistance funds for Wilkes county will not be sufficient to pay old age assistance and aid to dependent children to all eligibles, Charles McNeill, Wilkes county welfare superintendent, said after a conference with state officials.

The allotment will allow an increase in the old age assistance list of 72 for the fiscal year which began on July 1, Mr. McNeill said, but this figure will still leave many who have already been approved by the welfare board without provision for aid.

With 108 already on the waiting list, the county welfare board met last week and approved 43 more for old age assistance and ten additional families for aid to dependent children.

According to information given the county welfare superintendent, the county's allotment for aid to dependent children for the ensuing fiscal year is already filled and no others can be added except as cases are terminated.

When the 72 additional old age cases are added to the assistance payroll for the year there will remain 79 who have been approved as eligible for assistance and for whom there will be no funds available, Mr. Mc-

Neill said. He said that the state government, which must be approved by the senate, the federal appropriation for aid to dependent children will be increased January 1 and this will enable paying all eligible cases, because state and county contributions will be smaller.
