KNOW YOUR BANK

The Birth of a Bank

Do you know how banks are organized? First a comprehensive analysis of the community is made. If the organizers are convinced that a new bank is feasible, an application for a charter is submitted showing the name of the bank, location, capital and surplus to be raised, and names of proposed incorporators and officers.

A national bank charter must be secured from the Comptroller of the Currency; a state bank or trust company charter must come from the state banking department.

The chartering authority makes an investigation to justify opening a new bank. If the decision is favorable, a permit to organize is issued, and stock may then be sold. When the stock has been successfully marketed, articles of association and an organization certificate are filed. The charter is then issued and the bank may commence business.

A. J. Maxwell
DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE
FOR GOVERNOR

In the Democratic Primary
SATURDAY, MAY 25
A Well Qualified, Progressive Business Man With A
Progressive Program

Mr. Maxwell is particularly well qualified for the office of Governor because of his knowledge of the affairs of the State—its needs as it affects the people, and changes that would benefit them still more. Mr. Maxwell does not favor increased taxes, but more economical operation and a greater service return from them.

Among the numerous things which Mr. Maxwell stands for, the following statement by him will throw light upon his position relative to better roads and better educational facilities:

"It is a great temptation to appeal for popular support by promises of tax reduction . . . In my judgment these causes (public education, public health, etc) are of vastly more importance to the people than any nibbling reduction in taxes that can but weaken our capacity to support them . . . Particularly we need to give greater emphasis to vocational training for the preponderance of the 80 per cent of high school graduates who never go to college . . . My road and school program are not antagonistic, but mutually contribute to each other . . . Too frequently schools are closed for a week or more because school buses cannot be operated. The loss to public and teachers is deplorable, and should not be permitted to continue. The highway program which I am advocating stresses an all-weather road for every school bus route in North Carolina . . . I have . . . a genuine and whole-hearted interest in the whole problem of Public education. It is our main reliance in making our North Carolina of tomorrow a better State."
