Dellaplane and Roaring River Route 2 News

ROARING RIVER, Route 2, April 15.—Services were held Saturday and Sunday at Oak Forest and Cranberry.

No improvement was reported last week in the condition of Rev. N. T. Jarvis, who has been very low nearly four months and said to be rather worse for three or four weeks. From the first, doctors offered only slight hope for his recovery, but he held his own better than they expected for two months or more.

Robert Sparks and Miss Lucille Pardue were married April 1 and have since been making their home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Frank Sparks.

Rob Martin, colored, says while he and his wife were gone to Roaring River last Monday in daytime, some bold thief stole his domineer rooster and one pullet. He bought them at the old Tilley place.

Ida Justina Foust, elderly colored woman who died Friday morning of cancer, was in many ways a remarkable darkie and popular with both races. Extraordinary cheerfulness, will power, and helpfulness to others caused her to bear up under the ravages of her disease with more

Spartan courage than perhaps anyone else ever displayed. For years she was "Right peart, I thank you;" and when she could no longer say that, she declared she was "pretty well, except the cold wind made her face hurt," and she went about the neighborhood a little even last fall. She had always been remarkably industrious and kept a small store as long as she could possibly wait on customers. Ida was a Parks in the beginning and had been married three times—to Alfred Foust, C. C. "Shuff" Martin, and Lum Holloway. A large crowd of both colored and white people attended her funeral at Union Grove the past Sunday.

Miss Pauline Sparks has been staying with Mr. and Mrs. George Sale near Cricket.

Mrs. Frank Sparks and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Robert Sparks, spent last Thursday in the Wilkesboros.

Estelle Dobbins Calloway, colored, moved from her home to that of her mother, Ida Foust, a week or two before Ida died. It is not known whether she will move back again or remain at Ida's.

Last autumn's calf dispute, which many thought had been compromised or otherwise amicably settled, is now reported to have waxed until the calves became cows. It has several times been rumored, denied, and reaffirmed that the little disputed heifer Deputy-Sheriff Worth Sale is keeping, found a calf a month ago and is giving milk. The larger heifer, which Mr. Frank Sparks is keeping, will soon be fresh also, it is claimed. Mr. Sparks' calf is said to be 18 months old, now, and Mr. Pardue's around 30 or 32 months old—both plenty old enough to give milk. Some say, however, that it is only a joke about the smaller heifer having found a calf, and a few witnesses claimed she was smaller last October than Mr. Sparks' calf was last April, when at the old Tilley place. It is all a deep mystery how these honest families became so involved over their calves. But they had grown rapidly or been stunted.

Whether they had read the novel, or not, many in this locality are planning to see "Gone With the Wind" this week.

We have lost many of our sawmill people. Mr. and Mrs. Thurmond Myers and small child moved away from Mr. M. M. Mathis' place. Mr. and Mrs. Avery Pilkington and small daughter, Juanita; Mr. Pilkington's grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Pilken-

An eight-pound album of the U. S. home reproduced in natural color photography makes its bow this spring to make American householders and prospective home-builders color-conscious. Sponsored by the Decorative Studios of the Sherwin-Williams Co. the huge book uses scores of two-foot-square color photographs of colorful homes and interiors in a quarter-million dollar effort to make the average American color-wise. Color schemes for every taste and every room are combined with data on how they may be achieved without complicated tinting or mixing, thus putting paint on equal footing with wallpaper and other decoration components which can be seen before applying. It is on display at Carlton's Hardware, local paint and color styling headquarters.

Phillips Is Asking Joint Campaign

Southern Pines.—D. C. Phillips, candidate for congress from the eighth district, today issued a public challenge to his opponents, Congressman Burgin, C. B. Deane, Giles Newton and Bob Steele to meet him on a joint speaking tour of the district.

"I want to bring this campaign out into the open," asserted Mr. Phillips "and avoid a repetition of the pussyfooting, boondoggling and underground steam roller tactics of the fiasco two years ago. I want the issues clearly stated and I think the voters should have the opportunity of hearing and sizing up the different candidates in the old-fashioned American way."

"During the past few days I have traveled right much over the district and have discovered that the lieutenants and captains are being trained for an even greater battle than two years ago. There are concrete evidences now that the two fighting generals are determined to have another political war at any price and they are resorting to guerilla tactics."

"I want peace and harmony in the eighth district and I am confident that the people share my opinion."
