Student Program

The commencement program at North Wilkesboro high school on Tuesday night was something new and unique in the way of high school commencements.

Instead of having an out-of-town speaker to exhort the principles of living to the graduates, the seniors did the talking and did an excellent job.

And why not? It was their night. It was their graduation from high school and the large crowd was there in their honor. It must have been very gratifying to the parents, relatives and friends of the members of the graduating class to see and hear them carry out their program so well.

The program was original and the talks made by the seniors represented their own conclusions. That is more than can be said for many commencement speakers, who are prone to borrow ideas from some writer or quote a lot of poetry.

The entire program was carried out well and the audience responded to each number with genuine applause and approval.

The high school band opened the program and many favorable comments have been made about that organization which is in its first year. The high school band, when it gets additional training, equipment and uniforms, is going to be a big asset to the city.

Business and Farming

On Wednesday night a group of representative farmers, business men and others gathered in a farmer-business man banquet, which was a very delightful affair.

The gathering was held for the purpose of promoting goodwill and cooperation between business men and farmers and in order that business men might obtain a more comprehensive understanding of the farmer's problems.

It is now recognized by all economic authorities that the welfare of one is dependent upon the welfare of the others. If farmers cannot prosper business men can not attain any appreciable measure of success. If business cannot operate successfully and help provide a market for farm products farmers cannot succeed.

Both have had difficult tasks in making ends meet and if there is not close fellowship and cooperation the task is made far more exasperating.

Every day in every way the business of making a living becomes more complex. No longer can one community or one class of people long prosper at the expense of others.

At the banquet one speaker related incidents of his boyhood days when he would drive the wagon to town with some products to sell and then he had the idea that those who did the buying were going to pay just as little as possible for what he had to sell and would try to cheat him out of it if possible.

He said that he had learned that was a mistaken idea and that business, generally speaking, does as much for the farm as is consistent with good business practices.

The farmer-business man banquet idea is sound. We hope that others will be held at regular intervals.

June Milk Month

With estimates indicating that the 1940 U. S. Milk production may reach new highs, milk distributors are cooperating with other branches of the dairy industry and drug, food and variety stores on June Dairy Month, a widespread promotional drive to increase consumption of milk and dairy products.

Milk is the largest single source of farm income in the U. S. and last year it contributed $1,255,000,000 in cash to the farmer, says the Milk Industry Foundation.

When 25 million bottles of fresh milk are placed on the doorsteps of American homes this dairy service is so efficiently carried out as to be almost unbelievable to foreign milk experts.

If consumers would drink an extra glass of milk every day during June, more than one billion more quarts would be consumed as fluid milk which brings the farmer his highest price.

It is estimated that one out of every 15 families in the country is dependent for its livelihood on the milk from 25 million cows, according to the Milk Industry Foundation, which says this fact alone warrants a determined all-industry effort.

The milk distributors will cooperate with food, drug and variety stores, hotels and restaurants, civic clubs and schools, railroads, bus and airplane lines and milk producers to remind the consumer that the Milky Way is the American Way.

Window displays, advertising posters, fountain placards, pennants, truck banners and leaflets will feature milk. New "made-with milk" drinks will be advertised by soda fountains. Activities will benefit dairy products, including ice cream, butter and cheese.

Socialized Medicine

Many are the proposed measures which have been placed before congress, which, if enacted into law, would provide some kind of conglomeration of socialized medical services.

Many American people, who for some reason or for no reason at all are becoming so soft that they want to look to the government for every necessity of life, will be better off if they turn a cold shoulder to many so-called social reforms which are being suggested.

Such measures lead into a state of socialism and individualism goes out the window. Such a trend would eventually find ourselves paying our wages to the government and politicians would provide some kind of services with that part of the taxes which would not be gobbled up in political waste.

"Nation's Business" recently published a picture with an article. The picture showed an impatient physician talking to an elderly lady and the article beneath the picture was as follows:

"This doctor can't sit listening to your tale of woe. He's not a private physician. He works for the government, not you. You're just one of the people assigned to him by the political overseer. Ten more of you are in the waiting room, with twenty or thirty to come.

"You can't expect time and sympathy under conditions like that. So snap into it, comrade! Briefly now, what seems to be the trouble?"

"That's socialized medicine, run by politicians and paid for by payroll taxes.

"Compare it with the traditional American system of private medicine, in which the individual freely selects and consults the doctor in an atmosphere of intimate and friendly confidence.

"Private medicine has done a magnificent work in the United States. Our average life expectancy is the highest in the world. Serious diseases are under increasing control. Infant and maternal mortality rates are lower than ever.

"But this does not interest those who want to set up socialized medicine. Law after law is presented to the U. S. Congress and State Assemblies to put the relations between doctors and patients under political control.

"Unless Americans want to sign up for all time they should reject these Government Health legislative proposals flatly, without delay."

REFUGEES AS WAR MATERIAL

(Lenoir News-Topic)

It is generally realized by this time that the Nazi war machine has no inhibitions about war methods and weapons. It seems deliberately to make terror itself a weapon, scaring the non-military population of invaded countries into submission or flight by the very horror of its burning, bombing and killings.

But there is an additional technique, apparently deliberate, which goes beyond this in cunning. The panic-stricken populations scared from their homes by fear of death and driven into the highways, as the armed invasion proceeds, seem to be used purposely to impede the armies of the countries invaded. News reports have told time after time of roads and bridges so crowded with masses of old men, women and children that the defense troops could not get through, or maneuver, in order to fight the invaders or to save the areas not yet overrun.

Dairy Herd Improved Through DHIA Work

"The proof is in the milk, but-terfat, and feed cost," paraphrased John A. Arey, Extension dairy specialist of N. C. State College, in citing an example of the economic value of proper care and good feeding of the dairy herd. He illustrated with records of improvement made by the Caswell Training School Holstein herd at Kinston since it started Dairy Herd Improvement Association work in 1935.

"This herd," Arey declared, "has nearly doubled its milk production and butterfat records, and at the same time has reduced its feed cost per 100 pounds of milk by 62 cents. During the five years that the Caswell Training School herd has been on test, there has been little change in its make-up. There were 44 cows in the herd in 1935; there are 47 cows now.

"The cows that have been culled out were replaced by heifers grown on the farm. Although good bulls have been used, most of the increase in production should be credited to better care and feed rather than to the introduction of better cows."

Here are the records the Extension specialist used in showing the importance of good care and feed in economical milk production: During 1935 the 44 cows in the school herd produced an average of 6,980 pounds of milk, or a total of 307,120 pounds, at a feed cost of $1.47 per 100 pounds of milk, or a total of $4,514 for feed.

During 1939 the herd of 47 cows, many of which were in the herd during 1935, produced an average of 12,396 pounds of milk, or a total of 582,612 pounds, at an average feed cost of 85 cents per 100 pounds of milk. The total feed cost was $4,952.

The butterfat average per cow increased from 219 to 403 pounds.
