British Princesses Stay In Seclusion

London—The war has upset the royal routine for initiating Princess Elizabeth to public life as heiress presumptive to Britain's throne.

Neither fourteen-year-old Elizabeth nor her eight-year-old sister, Margaret Rose, are seen in public these war-clouded days. Palace sources say that like England's other boys and girls, they are "somewhere in the country."

The Princesses' visits to London are rare, usually short shopping tours and lunches with their parents, King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth.

Because of air raid hazards they never stay at Buckingham Palace. In seclusion they are carrying on their usual studies. There are no court functions and fewer "extras," such as dancing.

Elizabeth is said to be studying geography intently and showing keen interest in news of the war. She gave up study of German recently and started Spanish in its place.

Both children knit, save tin foil and are kept to regular food rations. In turn, they have rationed their dogs.

Queen Mary, too, is living in the country, but she makes occasional public appearances such as visits to hospitals.

Princess Elizabeth's last public appearance was at her birthday party in Windsor Castle April 20.

Queen Elizabeth is one of the busiest women in England. She makes almost daily trips to hospitals, benefits and meetings or service auxiliary units.

Says Ford Flooded By Many Threats

New York, July 2.—Henry Ford "has been flooded with threatening letters" since his refusal to manufacture plane engines except for American defense purposes, it was stated today by Cholly Knickerbocker, society editor of the New York Journal-American.

As a result, Knickerbocker's story said, police of fashionable Southampton are considering a possible cail on the FBI and other Government agencies to guard the Ford family on July 13 when the motor wizard's grandson, Henry Ford II., will be wed to Anne McDonnell.

Anne's parents, the James Francis McDonnells, have commissioned a private detective agency to send a force of plainclothes men to the ceremony, the story said, but the Southampton police "probably will request additional help in throwing protection around the Ford family."

Dearborn, Mich., July 2.—A spokesman for the Ford Motor Company today denied reports circulated in New York that Henry Ford had been threatened and that the FBI would be asked to guard the Ford family on July 13, when Henry Ford II., the motor magnate's grandson, marries Anne McDonnell. The spokesman said:

"Since Mr. Ford made his announcement regarding the manufacture of planes for American defense we have received hundreds of letters praising his stand and only a very few criticizing it."

State Offices Says CCC Now Open To Unemployed

Unemployment and the need of the training available rather than a family's need for relief funds will broaden the third quarter Civilian Conservation Corps acceptance operations in North Carolina, T. L. Grier, State CCC selection supervisor, said this week.

Acceptance of 2,400 enrollees will be held at Raleigh, July 1; Wilmington, July 2; Asheville, July 9 and 10; and at all North Carolina CCC camps from July 1 to 20. County welfare superintendents are local selecting agencies operating in conjunction with the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare, State selection agency.

"Enrollment is open to all young men not employed and in need of work who are between the ages of 18 and 25, and no applicant will now be excluded from selection because his family is not in need of the allotment to be sent home each month," Grier stated.

He quoted J. J. McEntee, national corps director, to the effect that the greatest field of service for the CCC lies in training large numbers of skilled and semi-skilled mechanics with elementary engineering experience.

With the CCC operating and maintaining the largest group of mechanized equipment in the country, 63 central repair shops will be in operation by the fall in which unemployed youths can learn to repair trucks, power shovels, pumps, graders, generators and compressors under a full-time instructor.

Fifteen hundred garages give an additional work space for repair and maintenance of 40,000 pieces of automotive machinery constituting a vast laboratory for repairs and maintenance on which 72,000 enrollees are constantly learning garage mechanics.

Each of the 1,500 camps conducts a cooking and baking school in which 22,000 boys have been trained in kitchen activities since 1933. Trained instructors in each camp have taught first aid work to 300,000 youths since beginning of the program.

Road and bridge construction, telephone construction and repair, shortwave radio operation and photography all will now be available to unemployed youths with no work experience to fit them for a job later in life.

Grier quoted Senator James F. Byrnes as saying that in event of national emergency necessitating a general draft, youths with mechanical and cooking experience in the CCC might as the result of such training be assigned to non-combatant activities rather than to combat work in uniform.

Wheeler In Race For Nomination

St. Louis, July 2.—U. S. Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat) of Montana, in St. Louis to address a "stay out of war" rally, declared today that he will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President at Chicago convention, in mid-July, whether or not President Roosevelt decides to seek a third term.

Wheeler, one of the most formidable opponents of President Roosevelt's "aid to the Allies," was interviewed at a local hotel in the same suits occupied recently by Wendell W. Willkie, the Republican Presidential nominee.

Wheeler declared that Willkie's popularity is now at its near peak and predicted that:

It will decrease as his popularity on foreign affairs becomes better known to the public.

That sentiment is overwhelming in the United States against war.
