Guy Addresses Kiwanians Here

Rev. T. Sloane Guy, Jr., pastor of the Wilkesboro Baptist church, addressed the North Wilkesboro Kiwanis club Friday noon on the subject of "Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness."

The program was in charge of Dr. E. N. Phillips, who introduced the speaker. Some of the highlights of his address were: The business of life is one of fellowship and our fundamental law was behind the idea of guaranteeing this right to every person in America. It is likewise fundamental that our people everywhere be free of tyrannical rule in the working out of this life. The pursuit of happiness is intended in theory and should not be hampered in practice.

In the business session of the club meeting W. D. Halfacre raised the question of sponsoring some place for the young people to swim. It was suggested that a suitable place could be prepared below the dam on Reddies River at the city water plant. After discussion the president, J. B. Carter, appointed the public affairs committee and W. D. Halfacre and P. W. Eshelman to investigate the matter and make recommendations.

Dr. E. N. Phillips raised the subject of the need of a public tennis court and the Boys and Girls committee was asked to investigate the matter.

M. D. Speer, of Ohio, was a guest of John E. Justice at the meeting.

How does individual thrift help National Defense?

You hear much nowadays about the importance of thrift to defense. Just how does it help? First, it provides funds which banks can lend for defense purposes. Second, it retards the dangers of inflation by diverting funds from consumer purchases. Third, it provides reserves to help cushion the post-war economic shock. We urge thrift as sound for individuals and the nation. Your account is welcome here.
