

Crops and Poultry in Wilkes County

By J. B. SNIPES
(County Agent)

The Farmers of Wilkes county seeded more than 10,000 acres of Lespedeza which was our goal for the year.

Close growing crops like Lespedeza help to reduce soil erosion, and conserve and build up the soil by adding humus and organic matter to the soil. Lespedeza where left for two years and turned under will increase the corn yield from 10 to 50 per cent thereby reducing the fertilizer bill greatly.

Other legumes such as alfalfa, cowpeas, clovers, vetch, soybeans, Austrian Winter Peas are grown, but not on as large a scale as Lespedeza.

Poultry

Wilkes county is one of the largest poultry producing counties in the state and rightly so. The poultry business is sound and the future bright. Poultrymen are assured of 22 cents per dozen for eggs and 15 cents per pound for poultry for the next two years. This doesn't mean that poultry and eggs will not go higher, but means it will not go lower. In fact, poultry and eggs are higher than these prices at the present time.

We have several big hatchers established here from which thousands of baby chicks are sold over the state. These hatchers also buy the eggs from our own Wilkes county farmers which gives them a wonderful market. Other than the hatchers the merchants and produce dealers buy thousands of dozens of eggs from our farmers. Other eggs are sold in the nearby cities and states.

In addition to the baby chick and egg business, thousands of broilers are grown each year. Broiler production is perhaps the quickest way that the poultrymen can turn over his money.

Cotton and Tobacco

The farmers of Wilkes grow approximately 1400 acres of tobacco and from 100 to 300 acres of Cotton. These cash crops are small, but to the farmers who grow them they are vitally important.

The farmers who grow these two cash crops have many problems, such as the blue-mold in tobacco which has given much trouble within the past few years, with the exception of the present year. The bollweevil has been a big problem for the cotton farmer. Due to the fact that we had a surplus of cotton and tobacco for the past ten or more years the prices haven't been encouraging to the farmers. Tobacco prices have held up much better than cotton for some reason. By using more cotton we may expect better prices.

World's Most Charming Profile

This photograph makes the fact even more obvious that Queen Elizabeth of England has the most charming profile in the world. She is seen everywhere encouraging her subjects during the arduous days of warfare. This time she was snapped while inspecting the members of the war auxiliary services, who in Great Britain's new war parlance pass muster under the name of "wrens."

Discreet Wives Keep Personal Woes Quiet

Young lovers in the moonlight always plan to tell each other everything for the rest of their lives. That is instinctively right and beautiful because the success of marriage depends on the open-hearted trust that husband and wife have in each other.

However, if you are wise, you soon learn there are things not to tell your husband, writes Dorothy Walworth in the July Good Housekeeping magazine. You should not tell him, Miss Walworth advises, your friends' secrets. After all, they have confided in you, not in your husband. This goes for your family secrets too. A whole lot of in-law trouble would be avoided if a wife never repeated bosom-of-the-family confidences.

One way to keep your romance happy is to refrain from discussion of physical ailments. Spare him the account of your latest battle with indigestion, and don't launch into a long description of your headaches. Don't be over-jealous when your husband converses with another woman at a party, and don't make a scene afterwards because it is beneath your dignity as a whole.

In any marriage evenings are important, Miss Walworth states. To keep them so, tell your husband pleasant things you've heard about him, and steer clear of idle gossip, and criticisms your family has made of him.

Silence isn't easy, Miss Walworth says in closing, but a discreet amount is necessary to your happiness.

Forestry

Forestry is a big business for the farmers and the prices have been very satisfactory here of late. The farmers realize that the sale of timber, poles, post wood, bark and also plenty for their own farm needs is one of the most important crops on the farm. However, in lots of the cases our forest land is not given the same thought and management as the other crops.

Orchards

According to our records we have some 200 orchardists who have approximately 200,000 apple trees of bearing age, and 60,000 each trees of bearing age. Many thousand bushels of apples are sold each year by the Brushy Mountain Fruit Growers. Wilkes county has more apple trees of bearing age than any other county in the State.

Small Grains

Some 15,000 or 16,000 acres of wheat, oats and rye are grown, but this does not supply the farm needs.

David Morgan Is Arrested On Draft Charge

Raleigh, June 19.—Federal agents today arrested David Robinson Morgan, of Wake Forest, a conscientious objector, for refusing to fill out his selective service questionnaire.

Cotton Mattresses Comforters Made

By MISS ELIZABETH WILLIAMS AND J. B. SNIPES

The 1941 Cotton Mattress Program is a program sponsored jointly by the Extension Service, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, and the Surplus Marketing Administration, under which surplus cotton and mattress ticking are made available to low income rural families for processing into double sized mattresses, and comforters exclusively for home use.

More than 3,000 mattresses have been made in Wilkes county, and approximately 6,250 applications have been received in the Home Agents office, which includes every section of the county. Mattress Centers have been set up as follows: Ferguson, Joynes, Roaring River, Mulberry, Boomer, Mt. Pleasant and Wilkesboro.

At the present time, comforters are being made at each of the above mattress centers. We have material on hand for making 2,000 comforters, which are to be made by families that put in application for mattresses, and are to receive as many comforters as they did mattresses.

Cheat Thermometer During the Summer

Beauty in hot sticky weather narrows down to just one word—COOL. The women who would be lovely then likes to look cool as an ice cube, refreshing as mint-sprigged ice tea.

And you can, if you follow the suggestions offered by the Beauty Clinic of Good Housekeeping appearing in the July issue of the magazine. Slow down in summer, the Clinic recommends. Take your time. Don't hurry; don't push. Get up early to enjoy the fresh morning air and get chores out of the way before the sun is high.

For personal coolness, pat on clouds of country scented dusting powder. Your clothes won't cling, and you'll waft a faint air of spring. Spray your body with chilly, tangy cologne. Wash your hair oftener. It gets oily and smelly faster in hot weather. Keep it up off your face and off your neck. Keep it neat; keep it simple and protect it from too much sun.

Take more baths; use more bath salts, more fluffy lather. Use tepid water and pat yourself dry the cool way. And a last warning from the Beauty Clinic, use a perspiration check often enough to avoid underarm moisture or wear dress shields and use a deodorant daily.

Daylight Saving In Southeast Urged

Washington, June 19.—The federal power commission said today it would urge immediate adoption of daylight saving time throughout the southeast as a means of combating a power shortage in that area which produces aluminum and other materials vital to defense.

A large area of the southeast now is on a program restricting non-essential use of energy in homes and commercial establishments, so that more power may be delivered to plants with defense orders.
