States was about to be introduced in Congress brought a prompt denial of any such plans from President Roosevelt. In spite of that, however, the news association that circulated the original story insists that it is true. Americans who value their liberty can only hope that it is not.

Freedom of the press has always been one of the fundamental freedoms in our democracy. Today we are arming to defend those freedoms—all of them. Our eyes are fixed outside our country for signs of aggression against us. But aggression does not always come from abroad. It may be well from time to time to turn back our gaze and search America for signs of internal attack upon traditional liberties.

In the dictator countries, freedom of the press was one of the first freedoms to fall under the axe of government decree. Take away a man's right to say what he honestly thinks, and you set the stage for a nation of puppets, all dancing to the vicious music of subtle propaganda. It has happened in other nations. We dare not let it happen here.

Advertising and Defense

With a national emergency in the making, some bemoan the fact that business continues as usual.

That is very necessary in all lines of endeavor not directly connected with national defense.

The defense program is immense. It will take billions to finance defense. Billions must come from the American people. Before they have billions to furnish in the form of taxes they must first make profits and must earn good wages.

To keep business going good, advertising is an essential factor. Thus we see that advertising is in the interest of national defense.

Advertising is essential even if there should be a scarcity of some products. The person who does no advertising unless he has surplus stocks will find that when the time arrives when he does have a surplus that the other man will have the trade.

"It Pays To Advertise" was the title of the following editorial which appeared in Tuesday's Baltimore News-Post:

Advertising, as the circulatory medium of American economy, fulfilling ably its fundamental task of giving information and stabilizing business, is today an important activity in the defense program.

This is the gist of a speech given at the Los Angeles Advertising Club by Paul Garret, executive official of General Motors Corporation.

Even in case the demand exceeds the supply—as must happen during the emergency in many commodities—advertising is not needless but needed, in the same way that designing, engineering, production and merchandising are needed, Mr. Garret said.

"You have heard it said that we do not want business as usual.

"No, we need something better and more vigorous than that.

"We need business as unusual—in lines and places where it does not interfere with defense. How else can we support defense?

"How else can we bring to bear our full superiority?

"With all the matters we have immediately at hand, advertising must keep one eye on the burning problems that will confront us as the emergency passes."

This is sensible and constructive, patriotic talk.

A country stands only as long as its economy stands.

Advertising, with its deep influence on prices, habits of consumption and methods of production, can be not only a balance wheel during times of stress but a powerful factor for equilibrium when the stress relaxes.

Today, more than ever, it pays to advertise.

RULES OF THE ROAD
COASTING

Sec. 127, Motor Vehicle Laws of North Carolina—"The driver of a motor vehicle when traveling upon a down grade upon any highway shall not coast with the gears of such vehicle in neutral."

This is self-explanatory. Motor vehicles are forbidden to coast on the highway.

This is a period of doubt, inquiry, speculation, selfishness; of divided interests, marvelous good, and mysterious evil. But sin can only work out its own destruction; and reform does and must push on the growth of mankind. —Mary Baker Eddy

He who reforms himself, has done more toward reforming the public, than a crowd of noisy, impotent patriots. —Lavater

Abnormal Absurdities

By DWIGHT NICHOLS, et al.

GANGSTER TALK HERE

A boy in his early teens was walking along a local street a few days ago when he was heard to handle one end of a conversation in about the following words:

"The law can't touch my family. We got the best mouthpiece in the state. My brother was caught redhanded in the 'raffles' but he'll beat the rap easy. The law can't touch us."

Just who the boy was we don't know and we readily confess we don't know what he meant by "raffles." That is a new term. However, we have learned some of the other gangster vocabulary used by the boy, enough to wonder what will become of him if his ambitions lead in that direction.

SCALES ARE QUESTIONED

Some of the reported 15-pound babies at birth were probably weighed on the same scales the fathers used to weigh fish after a fishing trip.

RANDOM RAMBLINGS

When a doctor prescribes absolute quiet for a married man he prescribes sleeping powder for his wife.

Old mosquito to young mosquito: When I was your age I could bite girls only on the face and hands.

Potts was a great man. After his death three towns were named for him — Pottsville, Pottstown and Chambersburg. —Public Service magazine.

Home is defined as a little used structure that usually stands on the same lot with the garage.

SAD, SAD STORY

He came down the garden path, a sad, sorrowful figure. She watched him with anxious eyes.

"How did father take it?" she asked.

"He took it all right," replied the young man.

"Oh, I'm so glad, George!" she cried.

"Are you?" he replied, flopping forlornly at her side. "Well I can't say that I am, dear. At first your father wouldn't listen to me."

"Why didn't you tell him that you had $2,500 in the bank, as I told you to?" she exclaimed.

"I did, after all else had failed," answered George, dejectedly.

"And what did he do then?" "Do!" echoed the young man, passing his hand wearily through his hair. "He borrowed it!"

THE WRONG DOCTOR

The famous Mayo brothers never had much patience with the wealthy persons who looked with condescension on others. On one occasion a pompous individual approached one of the Dr. Mayos with "So you are the head doctor?" His drawled reply was "No, I'm the belly doctor."

EASIER HEN LIFE

If a hen now could talk it could tell the old hens something to make them sit up and take notice. Used to be that a hen had to sit on a nest full of eggs for three weeks. Then the hen had to be with the chicks constantly for weeks, keeping them warm and scratching up worms for them to eat.

Now science has relieved hens of all that worry and work. The eggs are taken and placed in incubators. There the chicks come out in three weeks and are given the best of quarters and food. What a relief for the hens!

DEFENSE BOND QUIZ

Q. Can my children buy Defense Savings Stamps?

A. Yes. Hundreds of thousands of American children are buying Stamps regularly as their share in the national savings program.

Q. Why should children be encouraged to buy Savings Stamps?

A. Because by buying Stamps they write their names on a Roll of Honor of Americans who are doing their part to show the dictators that united America will never flinch to preserve her sacred liberty.

Q. After my child has collected enough Stamps to exchange for a Bond, can the Bond be registered in the child's name?

A. Yes. A minor may own a Defense Savings Bond. Many parents are registering Bonds in their children's names to prepare for future educational needs.

Note:—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C., for a mail-order form.
