

Urge Planting Of Winter Legumes

Miss Kathleen Crow, Noted Lecturer, To Conduct School Nov. 6-7

Pointing out that Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, has called for a considerable increase in legume crops, both as livestock feed and as a substitute for nitrogenous fertilizer, P. E. Church, supervisor of the Tri-Creek Soil Conservation District, is urging farmers to plant as large an acreage of winter legumes as possible this fall.

Much of the nitrogenous fertilizer needed for the production of non-leguminous crops can be produced right on the farm, thus releasing commercial nitrates needed in the manufacture of munitions, Mr. Church says.

Winter legumes not only add large quantities of nitrogen and organic matter to the land, he continued, but supply excellent protection against erosion in the early spring at a time when erosion is usually severe and a great deal of land in the district is idle.

Another way in which farmers can contribute to the Agricultural Defense Program is, to save and handle barnyard manure so that little of the nitrogenous elements are lost, he says. He also cautions against burning straw. When spread upon the ground and then plowed under, straw furnishes valuable fertilizing elements.

With the harvesting of crops making rapid headway, farmers can begin making plans for the planting of winter legumes. Planted early and properly inoculated, they will make good growth before cold weather.

Oak Furniture Co. Has Fire On Sunday

A fire in the boiler room at Oak Furniture company Sunday did no damage of any consequence, it was learned today, and the factory began operation on schedule this morning.

The fire, in the fireproof building, was confined to some shavings and was easily extinguished without it spreading to any other part of the plant.

Early Seeding Of Grain Important

Early seeding is important for both small grain and winter legumes, according to P. W. Edwards, representative of the U. S. Department of Agriculture in the Tri-Creek Soil Conservation District.

Increased yields and more grazing in the winter and early spring are among the advantages of planting small grain early, Edwards points out. Any excess acreage above the farm needs for grain, hay, and grazing can be turned under to add organic matter to the soil. The earlier the grain is planted, the more growth there will be to turn under.

Many farmers in the Tri-Creek District are planting grain this fall as the first step in setting up a systematic rotation in which lespedeza will be sown on the grain in February or early March.

A strip rotation can be established in this way by sowing the grain in strips this fall, or by planting the lespedeza in strips in the spring on solid fields of grain. Protection against erosion can be provided on more land if crops are planted in strips than can be obtained by the same acreage of crops in solid fields, Edwards explained.

May Yet Pay UCC Tax To The State

Raleigh, Oct. 8.—Employers subject to the State Unemployment Compensation who have not paid the state tax of 2.7 per cent of their payrolls for the year 1940 may pay the state tax by midnight of November 8, 1941, and still get credit for 90 per cent of what they would have received from the Federal Government, Chairman A. L. Fletcher, of the State Commission, has been advised by the Social Security Board.

This easing of penalty for not paying the state tax on time became effective when President Roosevelt signed the Revenue Act of 1941 on September 20.

Chairman Fletcher explains that if a liable North Carolina employer owes and has not paid the original total tax on his payroll for the year 1940, say, for example, of $5,000 ($4,500 to the state and $500 to the federal government) he may still pay the state its $4,500, plus interest, and the federal government will give him credit for 90 per cent of 90 per cent of the payment, or 81 per cent of the payment to the state. That is, the employer would pay the federal government $500 plus $450, or $1,050, and not the full $5,000, as formerly required, if he pays the state its $4,500 due on his 1940 payroll.

J. A. Triplet Dies

LENOIR, Oct. 8. J. A. Triplet, 78, former sheriff of Caldwell county, died this afternoon at his home here after an illness of a month.

Mr. Triplet served as sheriff from 1913 to 1923. He was born at Bull's Gap, Tenn., but came to Caldwell county while still a boy. He worked as a carpenter, operated a livery stable, and served as foreman of the Bernhardt Box factory before his appointment to the sheriff's office. He also served as a justice of the peace.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock at a local cemetery, and burial will be in the city cemetery.

Surviving are the widow; a sister, Mrs. V. D. Guire of Lenoir; and three brothers, N. R. Triplet, G. B. Triplet, and C. S. Triplet, all of Lenoir.

Gas Crisis: Tax Up Only $467,535.14

Raleigh, Sept. 30.—Revenue collections for this month were $6,277,674.35, compared with $5,724,191.73 in September 1940. Revenue Commissioner A. J. Maxwell reported today.

For the first three months of the fiscal year, receipts were $20,686,735.23. In the same period last year they were $18,198,383.01.

Despite the removal of foods from the list of items subject to the sales tax, that levy continued to bring in more money than in comparable periods last year. This month the return was $1,247,290.16, while in September, 1940, it was $985,679.53.

The sales tax so far this fiscal year has resulted in collection of $3,644,196.43, compared with $2,950,806.68 in the first three months last year.

Increases in gasoline tax collections also continued — from $2,358,082.66 in September 1940, to $2,825,617.80 this month; and from $6,916,799 in July, August and September last year to $8,313,113.87 this year.

Production Seed Very Important

The shortage of winter seed, due partly to the shut down of European markets as a result of the war and lack of transportation facilities at home, makes home production of seed more important than ever this year, says P. E. Church, supervisor of the Tri-Creek Soil Conservation District.

With the approach of the fall planting season, farmers are urged to select suitable areas of moderately good soil and make necessary preparation for planting winter legume seed patches. Of the legumes that may be expected to produce fair crops in this section, crimson clover, Austrian peas and vetch are best adapted.

Farmers who plant winter legume seed patches this fall can avoid buying seed in 1942 and may even add to their cash income from the sale of any surplus produced, Mr. Church says.

Although it is advisable to plant seed patches on soils that are sufficiently fertile to insure a satisfactory growth, most legumes produce larger yields of seed on soils of moderate, rather than those of very high fertility, such as areas around barn lots where there is an excessive amount of manure, he points out.

In addition to the fact that winter legumes are very important erosion control plants, there is also a strong probability that the supply of commercial nitrogen available for use in fertilizers may be seriously reduced next year. This will make the growing of legumes to furnish nitrogen of even greater than usual importance.

Dr. R. S. Moore Delivers Sermon

Preaches At Wilkesboro Methodist Church On Sunday Morning

Dr. Robert S. Moore, of Providence, Rhode Island, delivered a strong sermon Sunday morning to a large congregation at the Wilkesboro Methodist church, filling the pulpit as the guest preacher at the request of Dr. James C. Stokes, pastor of the church.

Dr. Moore's message was well received, and was a strong, gospel sermon. His text was "The Spacious Firmament on High."

During the service a duet was sung by Mrs. Maude Williams and Mrs. C. T. Doughton.

Mrs. Julia Brown Rites Held Sunday

Funeral service was held Sunday afternoon at Walnut Grove church in Walnut Grove township for Mrs. Julia Elizabeth Brown, age 80, who died at her home in that community Saturday evening. Rev. Troy Blevins conducted the service.

Surviving are three sons and one daughter: T. M. Brown, North Wilkesboro route one; W. E. Brown, Reddies River; R. F. Brown, Springfield; Mrs. Dosta Reeves, North Wilkesboro route one.

Modern Salesmanship

"I made a finer mousetrap than was ever made before, And waited for the world to beat that pathway to my door. But still the world is buying—while I sit in solitude . . . A less efficient mousetrap that is being bally-hooded."

"With all the trumpets blowing and the flaring flags unfurled, You have to take your mousetrap to the markets of the world. For none will buy your mousetrap, or will put it to the test 'Till it's advertised and merchandised—as 'Better than the rest.'"
