5th Sunday Singing Is Highly Praised

The fifth Sunday singing held at Fairplains was described by many as the best they ever attended. J. A. Gilliam, chairman, said that in the entire history of the association he was satisfied that the singing of choirs, quartets, soloists, and especially the congregational singing had never been excelled.

All available space in the auditorium and the Sunday school rooms of the church was filled and many stood on the outside.

"All classes and quartets were seemingly at their best. We don't think the singing can be beaten. But you can never tell when our singing chairs and quartets make up their minds and put their souls into this marvelous service. You are sure to hear singing that will inspire the soul and lift one to higher heights of Christian living. We hope Brother Gilliam may not let up until he enlists every choir of singers in the bounds of the association. We are looking forward to the next fifth Sunday."—One present.
