Circulation: Adults 1,442; Juvenile, 588; total 2,010. Following is a list of some new books that were added in different classes:

PHILOSOPHY

"Art of Living in Wartime". Highly readable discussion of the changes war is making in the lives of all of us. The author shows how we can get the most out of living under conditions which restrict our activities.

"For Daughters and Mothers" by Valeria H. Parker, M. D. This is a guide through the different problems that beset a girl in her early teens. Its aim is to promote an understanding between girls and their mothers by discussing frankly both points of views. Dr. Parker has written this book as a direct answer to questions most girls frequently ask.

"Your Child Meets the World" by Elizabeth F. Boettiger. This book offers stimulus and help to parents in formulating their own ideas of the world we live in. It is the first step toward knowing what kind of experiences will give your child a good start. Miss Boettiger offers many illustrations in which parents will recognize the stuff that everyday home life is made of.

RELIGION

"The Root and Flower of Prayer" by Roger Emelton. Dean Emelton has written a clear, practical book of real value to ministers and to all others who lead in public prayer. In time of war the practice of public prayer is undoubtedly more vital than in days of peace.

"A Preacher Looks At War" by Daniel A. Poling. Dr. Poling stresses the fact that Christian participation in war is necessary just as long as aggressor nations spread destruction and suffering over conquered countries. He emphasizes that a saner post-war world is possible and points the way by which it can be achieved. The author closes with a group of post-war programs, including the statement of the Federal Council of Churches at their biennial session December 11, 1942. Program for Action, released by the Christian Conference on Peace and War, and the Declaration of the Federation of the World.

"Living Prayerful" by Kirby Page. No one can use this book without having his mind stimulated, his will strengthened, and his heart warmed. It is vitally searching and above all usable.

SOCIAL SCIENCE

"The Spirit of Enterprise" by Edgar M. Queeny. Mr. Queeny has presented in this book highly logical, persuasive and easily read case for American free enterprise and its importance to post-war America and the post-war world.

"Challenge to Freedom" by Henry M. Wriston. This volume is a sequel to an earlier book, "Prepare for Peace" published in 1941. He wrote brilliantly, with the power of deep conviction. He believes that we have too long been on the defensive in all our thinking about democracy as a way of life. Challenge to Freedom offers a concrete program which should serve as a rallying point for all Americans who believe in the principles of freedom for which we are fighting.

MUSIC

"Living Musicians", by David Ewen.

"The Victory Book of Symphony" by O'Connell.

"A History of Music", by Finney.

"Our American Music," by Howard.

"Our Contemporary Composers" by Howard.

"America Sings" by Carmer. Here is a book that children will love forever. The author has told for American children (and their fathers and mothers, too) the whole story of the work that this great nation has done. It is told in terms of folk-story and folk-song.

"A Treasury of American Song" contains nearly 200 of America's songs from every period and every way of life we have known. It includes the songs of the famous Stephen Collins Foster.

The rotenone-sulphur cattle dip is more effective than the creosote or arsenic dips for cattle lice control, says J. Myron Maxwell, extension entomologist at State College.

Moisture in the air on rainy days make icings soft and sticky. To offset this tendency, cook the icing or sirup products just slightly longer, says State College home economists.
