Miss Lorena Kelly Speaks Twice In North Wilkesboro

Miss Lorena Kelly, of Mooresville, and who is home on furlough from Africa, where she has been a missionary for nine years, spoke twice in North Wilkesboro the first of the week before appreciative audiences. On Monday evening, under the sponsorship of the Woman's Society, Miss Kelly spoke at the North Wilkesboro First Methodist church, where she emphasized the need of more funds and more workers to carry on the work. There is a great need for leaders in every vocation. In her talk she gave a number of illustrations of native African boys and girls, from homes of poverty, and ignorance, who through their training in the missions schools, had become intelligent and useful citizens, and were assuming important positions of leadership.

On Tuesday morning, Miss Kelly a graduate of the North Wilkesboro high school, spoke in the school auditorium before a large group of grammar grade boys and girls, with their teachers, Misses Myrtle Tuttle, Myra Sale and Lucille Young, who are studying about Africa. The children enjoyed seeing one of the girls dressed in an African costume.

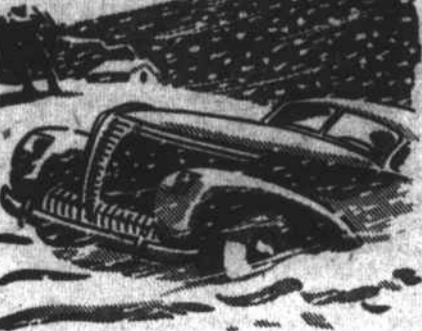

While in the city Miss Kelly was a dinner guest Monday evening of Mrs. Walter Newton, and an overnight guest of Mrs. Lane Atkinson, both of whom were members of Miss Kelly's graduating class.

At the close of Miss Kelly's talk Monday evening at the church, Mrs. Edd F. Gardner, president of the Society, presented Miss Kelly with a check of twenty-five dollars as gift from the Society to be used in her work. From here Miss Kelly went to Winston-Salem where she had engagements.
