May 5-12 Will Be Hospital Week

North Carolina hospitals and hospital workers will receive special recognition throughout the state the week of May 5-12, named North Carolina Hospital Week for 1950 by the state Hospital Association.

Tar Heels from the mountains to the coast will have opportunity to learn more about their hospitals, to meet the people who keep them going and to understand the special problems which confront them in the 4th annual observance of Hospital Week here. The week will close with participation in National Hospital Day, May 12, which is observed every year on the birthday of Florence Nightingale.

The week-long recognition is sponsored by the North Carolina Hospital Association and is conducted by the state's two official Blue Cross plans, the Hospital Care Association of Durham and the Hospital Saving Association of Chapel Hill.

Chief emphasis throughout the week will be on the many careers offered young people in hospital work. Open House programs for high school students will give thousands of young North Carolinians an insight into the various occupations available in hospitals.

Hospital leaders point out that with the new hospitals being built under the Good Health Program, new opportunities for all types of hospital careers will be opening. Beside nurses and doctors, technicians, dieticians, house-keepers, medical secretaries and many other trained workers will be needed.

Information on hospital careers may be had from local hospitals or by writing to the Duke Endowment, Hospital Section, Charlotte.

Home Demonstration Week Being Observed

"The Home - - Basis of a Better World" is the theme for National Home Demonstration Week in North Carolina, April 30-May 6. During this special week attention is being focused on what 63,242 home demonstration club women in the State are doing to improve their homes and keep their families well. At the same time, home demonstration members are broadening their horizons and developing a better understanding of national and international affairs in every state, Hawaii, Alaska, and Puerto Rico.

In the 2,050 communities in North Carolina where home demonstration clubs are organized, women are celebrating the week with county-wide meetings, tours to improved homes, demonstrations, exhibits, newspaper articles, and radio broadcasts. According to Miss Verna Stanton, assistant State home agent for the State College Extension Service, community "Home Demonstration Days" are being held to recognize the 32,264 leaders for their contribution to the development of better homes and community life. Other activities are pointing up achievements as rural women hold open house across the State.

From a small beginning in 1911, the home demonstration program in North Carolina has grown to an organization covering all of the 100 counties. This broad program features good home management, nutrition, food production and preservation, home furnishings and color arrangements, family relations, clothing for the family, citizenship, music appreciation, good reading, community activities, and many other interests of rural families.

"Better informed, healthier and happier rural people are important assets to our democracy," says Miss Stanton. "Rural people will continue to work toward these vital objectives as they improve their homes and community life, which form the basis of a better world."

Two Years Of Pro Baseball

Two years ago today the first professional baseball team in the history of this community took the field in the Blue Ridge league.

From the standpoint of playing the national pastime the clubs were successful during the first two years. In the first year the club finished a close second and in the second year finished fourth but breezed through the playoffs to the playoff title.

During the two seasons fans have learned to like professional baseball and have great pride in the teams produced. It has furnished recreation and diversion for many hundreds of people, not only in the Wilkesboros, but for people in rural areas of Wilkes and from adjoining counties. It is very evident that the coming of baseball has filled a great need in summer recreation and has wielded a wholesome influence.

Prospects are exceedingly good for a fine team this year, and the team definitely looks better than the starting teams of the past two seasons, which did all right. The only danger here is the possibility that the club will not have sufficient financial support to pay its own way. Fans can save baseball and assure its future here by attending in large crowds, which gives the business management encouragement as well as the players on the field. We have never seen a team here play a bad game when the stands were filled.

Approximately one-fourth of the cars inspected by Highway Patrolmen during the month of February had defective lights.

LIFE'S BETTER WAY

IF YOU WOULD HAVE FRIENDS

Perhaps some people wonder why
They do not have a lot of friends,
And maybe sometimes sit and sigh
At some hard word another sends;
But oftentimes they are to blame
Because of what they've done and said,
That's helped to hurt another's name,
Although the person may be dead.

If you would have, my fellows dear,
A host of friends along life's way
You've got to love and bless and cheer
Your fellow-pilgrims day by day,
And let them know your friendship's real,
And not an artificial show;
That you'll be found as true as steel
In spite of how the winds may blow.

To be a friend will make a friend,
And this may greatly multiply,
Before one's life on earth shall end,
Which we by love and grace should try;
Not only so we'll live in love,
And have each other's helping hand,
But that some day we'll meet above
And dwell with God in mansions grand.

THE WORLD HAS LOST ITS CHARMS

The world has lost its charms for me
Since Jesus set my spirit free
From all entanglements of sin
That used to reign and rule within;
And now I pass attractions by
That once I valued O so high,
Because my heart is filled with love
For God and things that are above.

The world has lost its charms for me
Since heaven's glories now I see
Through faith and hope that now is mine,
And love for Christ and things Divine.

How sweet to go along life's way
And have communion day by day
With Jesus Christ, the Lord of grace,
Who keeps us truly in our place;
Who fills us with a heav'nly peace,
Which, if we're true, shall never cease
Until we sing redemption's song
With heaven's holy, blood-washed throng!

The pleasures that attract men so
With all their vanity and show,
Long since have faded from my eyes,
For which my spirit never sighs;
Therefore my heart and mind and soul
Is fixed on heaven's blissful goal,
Where saints and angels sweet and fair
Shall dwell forever, ever there.

Lions Club Broom Sale Here Success

The recent sale of brooms made by the blind, and conducted to aid blind in Wilkes county, was successfully carried out by the North Wilkesboro Lions club.

The following letter was received from the club by The Journal-Patriot:
The Journal-Patriot,
North Wilkesboro, N. C.
Gentlemen:

On behalf of the membership of the North Wilkesboro Lion's Club, the Board of Directors has unanimously requested that I express their sincere appreciation for your assistance in advertising and publicizing the Lion's Club Blind Broom Sale which was recently carried out in this city.

Due to the success of this sale we were able to add a generous amount to our Blind Work Fund which as you know is spent entirely in assistance to the blind of Wilkes County. I wish it were possible for me to enumerate a few of the small, but vital projects upon which we are now working among the blind people of this county.

May I again express our deepest appreciation for your unselfish co-operation in the work of this organization.

Yours most cordially,
North Wilkesboro Lion's Club
Shoun Kerbaugh, Secretary.
