Worm Hordes Invade Field At Darlington

Darlington, S. C., May 30 — Darlington county fishermen today had all the free bait they wanted as a deluge of worms—similar to the army worms, but longer—invaded near-by Gedra airport on the Dovesville highway.

The worms appeared and began crawling all over the ground, in droves of several thousand.

Darlington fishermen began hurrying to the airport with containers to scoop up as many as possible for future use. Where the worms came from, and what kind they are remained mysteries today.

Because of the possible destruction of croplands from the worms, the areas were being sprayed around the airport by DDT crewmen, and every precaution was being taken to prevent a further migration of the worms.

Many fishermen went away with several hundreds of the worms.
