BAPTIST CONVERT ANCIENT FORT INTO ASSEMBLY GROUND

Southport, N. C. — North Carolina Baptists, 700,000 strong, have converted a fort that has served through four wars into a summer Seaside Assembly Ground.

With accommodations of 1,000 guests in refurbished barracks, cottages, and a building that formerly was a hospital but is now a hotel, the Fort Caswell Baptist Seaside Assembly opened June 12 with a program of conferences and meetings extending into September.

Fort Caswell was constructed in 1825. It saw its first action in the Civil War, guarding the mouth of the Cape Fear River used by Confederate blockade runners based at Wilmington. This was known as the "lifeline of the Confederacy." The Fort was manned again in the Spanish-American War and in both World Wars for coastal defense.

Of massive masonry, the Fort had emplacements for nine batteries. Atop one of these now is a warm water outdoor swimming pool. The water is pumped from the earth at a temperature that varies little from 90 degrees, summer or winter.

Between World Wars, the Fort became a summer resort, but adjoining Fort Caswell Beach has now been merged with Long Beach, to form an unbroken strand of 13 miles, south to Lookwoods Folly Inlet.

Richard K. Redwine of Southport is director of the Baptist Seaside and yacht basin as well as beach side Assembly, which has a pier and warm water swimming pool. It is distinctly a religious retreat, and although guests are welcome, they must abide by the rules which prohibit informal beach attire except on the beach and at play, and bar swimming and fishing on Sunday, and alcoholic beverages at all times.

Five Persons Injured In Surry Accident

Elkin, June 15 — Five were injured, none critically, in a collision last night near Brooks Crossroads in which a 1949 car and a 1949 pick-up truck were demolished.

Solomon C. Royall, 40, of Hamptonville Community, Herman Burgess, 29, and Dewey Burgess, 6, were passengers in the truck which was in collision with a car occupied by Dewey Cheek, 19, of Cycle and his brother, Frank Cheek, 16.

Women In The Church

American church women in thousands of communities will observe World Community Day, on Friday, November 3, with special programs and projects based on the theme, "Love thy neighbor." This annual observance is sponsored by the United Council of Church Women, which represents Protestant women of more than 80 denominations in state and local councils across the country. Says the Council: "Whether your neighbor lives next door and you like her, or down in shanty-town and you do not know her, or across the world in a primitive wilderness beset by superstitious fears, loving her means that you wish good for her and actively do what you can help the good come true." One of the main projects church women will undertake for neighbors "across the world" is to help provide "assurances" for refugee families.

Mrs. Josephine Cowin, national chairman for World Community Day, cites the work of the Council of Church Women in Greenwich, Conn. They called together the social and welfare agencies of the community to initiate a program that found jobs and homes for a group of displaced persons ranging from a farm for a family of five to a home and portrait commissions for a Latvian artist and his wife. Also cited is the Council in Oberlin, Ohio, which started a community program that found a shop for a D. P. tailor and jobs and homes for seven other refugees. In addition, Mrs. Cowin says, church women will be asked to help new neighbors, who come as D. P.'s, to become part of the American communities in which they settle. Some concrete suggestions include help in learning English; invitations to churches and other community activities; and making sure that our children make their welcome at school and on the playground.

ing meet the cost of the work for peace of the United Council's Christian Social Relations Department.

To guard against the entry of such devastating diseases as Asiatic or European Newcastle disease and fowl plague, the U. S. Department of Agriculture is adding poultry to the list of imported animals which must go through a period of observation under quarantine before entry is permitted.
