Boone Hampshire Sheep Sale 19th

By J. P. CHOPLIN, Wilkes County Agent

Sheep are one of the most profitable projects in farming today. The sheep population in the county is low and should be built to a higher level by farmers in Wilkes County. Mr. L. E. Tucker, County Agent at Boone, N. C., and Mr. H. M. Hamilton, Jr., of Boone, N. C., announce a sheep sale for breeding stock as follows:

Yearling Hampshire Rams

We will offer for sale at auction at the Boone Livestock Market, at 12:30 o'clock, Wednesday July 19th, 15 yearling Hampshire rams. Most of them were sired by that great breeding son of Bullet, Bullets Ram Rod. Included in the group will be the 1949 state fair Champion and other contenders for that title. All rams carefully selected from the purebred flocks of Watauga county. Some stud ram prospects.

Stock Ewe Lambs

We will also offer 100 grade ewe lambs selected from the best commercial flocks, all sired by registered rams and large enough to produce lambs in 1951. This is your chance to purchase your ewes and ram without traveling from farm to farm to look at them. More farmers are buying sheep and it is a good sign. It has been said that "Good sheep do not die in debt," and we believe that statement is true. Many of our farmers are keeping their ewe lambs, but we have secured some choice ewes for this sale. We believe you will like them.

We will look for you at the sale at Boone Livestock Market, one mile east of Boone, just off U. S. Highway 421.

Beekeepers To Attend Meetings State College

By J. P. CHOPLIN, County Agent

During the annual Farm and Home Week which is to be held at N. C. State College in Raleigh, August 1-3, there will be a series of beekeeping meetings in addition to other farm and home subjects.

Many farmers in Wilkes county are beekeepers producing red as well as sourwood honey.

Many of these Wilkes county farmers would find it enjoyable as well as profitable to attend these beekeeping meetings during farm and home week. For the benefit of those interested, the schedule of these meetings is
