NATIONAL EXPRESS AND TRANSPOR NATION COMPANY.—It will be seen by is trains as far south as Atlanta, Fish, Mackeral, No. 1. and as for West as St. Louis. uri. It will enery freights of all kinds, from the smallest packages to the est bexes, and it announces to its friends and the public generally that it will work as expeditiously and as cheaply as

The difficulties of this Company have been very great. In the attempt to obtain Express facilities, it has been met on every side by rival companies, who, by the expendituse of large means, by the granting of loans, by the payment of bonds, those rivals to the National Express have managed to obtain exclusive privileges over several routes, and to perfect arrangements which were very difficult to interfere with. Those difficulties have been overcome to a omsiderable extent, and the Philadelphia & Wilmington Bailroad has been induced to grant the company equal facilities with those enjoyed by the Adams Express Co., and at length a through connection to New York by Express has been established, and Tork by Express has been established, and offer their professional services to the freights can now be brought through as efficient of Salisbury and vicinity. Office promptly and as cheaply by this company as by the Adams' or any other Express Company.

The National Express Company is now doubliess established on a permanent footing, and is in efficient working order.-"Competition is the life of business," and in a short time it will probably be seen that the result of competition between Express companies will be to increase Express business, to afford additional facilities to the community, and to add considevable to, instead of deducting from the business of the companies themselves. The rivalry between the companies will certainly benefit the business public, and will probably not prove injurious to either
