26 Pine Street, New York, Udolpho Wolfe, Esq., Present: Dear Sir: 1 have made a chemical examination of your "Schiedam Schnapps," with the intent of determining if any foreign or injurious substance had been added to the sim-ple distilled spirits.

The examination has resulted in the conclusion that the sample contained no poisonous or harmful admixture. I have been unable to discover any trace of the deleterious substances which are sometimes employed in the adultera-tion of liquors. I would not hesitate to use myself, nor to recommend to others, for medical purposes, the "Schiedam Schnapps" as an ex-cellent and unobjectionable variety of gin.— Very respectfully yours, (Signed) CHAS. The Old North State GEN. RUFUS BARRINGER ON THE CONVENTION.

CHARLOTTE, July 7, 1871. EDITOR OBSERVER:-

I am so often asked for my views in regard to a Convention, that I may be pardoned a brief statement of them thro' the public press. Free and his discussion is what the country now greatly meds.

quiet and confidence, and when the cooperation of good men of all classes could be secured. This is impossible at present. Public affairs, especially in this State, are now in great doubt and confusion. Even the act iterli, under which the convention · proposed to be called, is at questionable validity. Ambierity and precedent are both against it. With this fact lying at the very threshold of the movement, is it possible that the work of the convention could prove satisfactory or permanent in its results? It is more apt to lead to further confusion and worse complications -if not to conflict and volume.

ADVANTAGES OF LIME.

The progress of chemical analysis is as applied to agriculture is opening up new sources of productive power. Fertilization especially has received a new and important development as the different elements of soil and their influence come bettea understood. Lime is now iu intelligent agriculturists still claim that the loss. Nothing makes firmer or better the former ingredient is volatilized and xpelled, taking away about 44 per cent. of the original weight. The carbonate a tasteless and insoluble, but the quicklime a powerful caustic and acquires a certain solubinty. It will absorb 25 per cent. of its own weight of water in slakng, and if left exposed to the air will undergo a process of dry slaking. Hence the sooner it is used after burning the lar ger proportion of its valuable qualities are utilized. It not only attracts moisture from the air, but also carbonic acid, gradny. Judgment reversed and verdict of ually restoring it to its original condition as a carbonic.

Its benefits are both mechanical and chemical. Upon slaking it falls into a very fine powder, and retains this minute subdivision of particles after it becomes a new carbonate. Its application should, however, be carefully regulated. If applied in connection with stable manure, for inssance, it sets free its volatile ammonia, which immediately passes into the air and is lost. It is important that this valuable element be preserved. If, however, the manure be already in the soil in a good state of mixture the ammo nia will be arrested and fixed by the latter in a condition in which it will be available for the use of crops. Sulphur in the limestone, uniting with a portion of the lime, and with oxygen from the atmosphere, forms gypsum or sulphate of lime, a valuable fertilizer. Silica also forms silicate of lime. Thus the chemical benefit is apparent in a variety of ways. Its mechanical advantages is seen in the light, porous character it gives to the soil, being a bulky, light powder.

> Beans Without Pork -The usual way people cook beaus is to parboil them ; put them in a kettle or pan, and set them in the oven with a chunk of fat pork in them. The grease bakes out into the beans, making a most unwholesome and indigestible mess, destroying all the good flavor of the beans. Now, a method for cooking them, recommend by a correspondent of the "Rural New Yorker," is as follows : Parboil as usual, putting in salt to suit the taste. Then put them in a pan and set them in the oven to bake, putting in a piece of good, sweet butter. Bake until tender and nicely browned over on the top. Beans are very nutrible, digestible, and can be eaten by any Reasonable Hints about Clothing .-Many persons lose their life every year by an injudicious change of clothing, and the principles involved need repetion every year. If clothing is to be diminished, it should be done in the morning when first dressing. Additional clothing may be safely put on at any time. In the Northern States, the under-garments should not be changed for those less heavy sooner than the middle of May. for even in June a fire is very comfortable sometimes in a New York parlor. Half the diseases in humanity would be swept from existence if the human body were kept comfortably warm all the time. The discomfort of cold feet or of a chilly room many have experienced to their sorrow; they make the mind peevish and fretful, while they expose the body to colds and inflammation, which often detroy it in less than a
