

THE WATCHMAN.

Salisbury, Saturday, November 10, 1883.

THE ELECTION.

In Salisbury, as we expected, the Barbourites pushed their ticket with great zeal. They were able, after half a year's industrious electioneering...

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Gov. Hamilton has convened the South Carolina Legislature—they have passed a bill to authorize a Convention of the State, that the long talked of Decree of Nullification may be put into operation.

FYLDE.

We call the attention of the favorers of fine horses, to the advertisement concerning this noble animal in the present number. We have but little doubt of the success of this superb Stallion.

COMMUNICATED.

Mr. Jones, if you have room, please correct an error which was published in the Journal of this morning, under the heading of "In the place of Miss Lavinia Brinkley, read Miss Elizabeth Brown."

THE GRAND JURY FOR THE COUNTY OF LINCOLN.

Having closed the labors of the week, the perilous situation of our country, growing out of the decision of Nullification, was by them duly considered. The foreman, Col. D. Hoke, addressed the jury at some length, and in a very feeling manner.
