MORE POETRY WORTH KEEPING.

The idea of the following song, it will be seen, is ber red from the Irish Emigrant, so touchingly set to muic and sung by Mr. Dempster. We are indebted for it to the Auburn Journal, a correspondent of which paper had it from the poet, Longfellow, at Cambridge, who said it was " by Deganne,"-a name with which we are not ed. Mr. L. thought the verses enough to immortalize any poet. They certainly are very beautiful and pathetic, exquisitely conceived, and smoothly and effectively expressed .- N. Y. Express.

LAMENT OF THE WIDOWED INEBRIATE

I'm thinking on thy smile, Mary-Thy bright and trusting smile-In the morning of our youth and love, Ere sorrow came-or guile ; When thine arms were twined about my neck, And mine eyes looked into thine, And the heart that throbbed for me alone, Wast nesting close to mine !

I see full many a smile, Mary, On young lips beaming bright ; And many an eye of light and love Is flashing in my sight ; But the smile is not for my poor heart, And the eye is strange to me, And a loneliness comes o'er my soul When its memory turns to thee !

I'm thinking on the night, Mary, The night of grief and shame, When with drunken ravings on my lips, To thee I homeward came ; O, the tear was in thine earnest eye And thy bosom wildly heaved. Yet a smile of love was on thy cheek, Though the heart was sorely grieved.

But the smile soon left thy lips, Mary, And thine eye grew dim and sad ; For the tempter lured my steps from thee, And the tempter drove me mad ; From thy cheek the roses quickly fled. And thy ringing laugh was gone, Yet thy heart still fondly clung to me, And still kept trusting on.

O, my words were harsh to thee, Mary, For the wine cup made me wild, And I chid thee when thine eyes were sad, And I cursed thee when they smiled. God knows I loved thee then. And the fire was in my brain, And the curse of drink was in my heart, To make my love a bane.

Twas a pleasant home of ours, Mary, In the spring time of our life, When I looked upon the sunny face, And proudly called thee, wife-And 'twas pleasant when our children played Before our cottage door ; But the children sleep with thee, Mary, I ne'er shall see them more.

Thou'rt resting in the church yard, now, And no stone is at thy h

EXPLOSION OF A BOMB SHELL. A few weeks ago there was an accidental explosion of a bomb shell in Charl ton Street, New York. And as I chanced to be at the spot a few moments after the explosion, I will give you a descrip tion of the terrific scene, as it met my eye I was sitting at my house, about a quarter of a mile from the place of the explosion, at 4 o'clock P. M., when the whole house was shaken by the report of apparently the heaviest of artillery. I was just preparing to go down in town, and taking an omnibus, soon saw the multitude of men and boys running towards Charlton Street. In a moment or more a crowd came around the corner of Charlton Street. bearing the body of a well-dressed man. upon a window shutter. They crossed the street directly by the omnibus, and I observed that the whole back side of the head was blown off, and the blood and brains were dripping down upon the shutter. Perceiving indications of great excitement in the rapidly gathering crowd, and hearing exclamations of "explosion," terrible explosion, &c. I left the omnibus to learn the cause of the disaster. Entering Charlton Street, guided by hundreds who were rushing to that from all quarters, I observed on both sides of the street. for a little distance, that the windows were entirely demolished, the frames in many places blown in, doors shattered. and holes blown actually through the sides of houses. In one place, forty rods, I should judge, from the spot where the explosion took place, a hole was blown through the front of a frame house, large enough for a man to enter. Upon the side walk, in front of a shop of old iron, lay in disorder, some thirty or forty rusty bomb shells, about eight inches in diameter. It was said by the crowd that a man had one of these between his knees, endeavoring to loosen the charge with a stick, when it exploded, producing this scene of destruction and carnage. The body of this man was torn to pieces, and scattered in fragments through the streets. Observing a crowd gathered around an object in the street at a little distance, I approached it, and saw, apparently, a large piece of butcher's meat. which a boy was pushing about with his foot. On examining it, it proved to be the lower portion of a man's leg, with the crushed bones, and mangled flesh. 'The ing daily more prosperous. The King is in exother leg,' said a by-stander, 'was blown cellent health. The Chambers had virtually over into Hudson Street.' A crowd was collected round a window still gazing at some object. It was a man's hand, the fingers burnt and crushed, and blackened, having been torn from the body, and thrown with violence against a brick wall. The mangled trunk of the unfortunate man, headless and limbless, had been carried into the house, and the shrieks of his wife were heard over the bloody remains. Upon an iron window frame lay the torn and bloody body of another man. A fragment of a shell had torn away one half of his head. He was dead. His blood and brains were dripping down upon the pavement, and day laborer had thumb and finger upon his eyes, to close them forever. Two young men who happened to be passing by in the middle of the street, were literally blown up into the air, and fell with broken and mangled limbs upon the pavement. They both died, I believe, the next day. In the street lay a horse dead, and it was singular that he also had the whole of the back of his head torn off by a fragment of the shell. A beautiful wagon to which he was attached, was also demolished, the spokes of the wheels broken, and the vehicle almost torn to pieces. Such was the devastation produced by the explosion of one single shell. And yet this shell did but perform its function. It was made for this very purpose-to destroy property and life. It was made to be thrown into the crowded streets of a city, there to explode, and blow up houses, and tear limb from limb. This was the function of the instrument. And this is war. To throw such missiles as these into the crowded streets of a city, is the business of war. As I looked upon this scene, and witnessed its carnage and woe, and reflected that it was the work of one single shell, and then reflected upon the consternation and horror which must be produced by raining down a shower of these shells upon a city, crushing their way through the roofs of the houses, exploding in the chambers of the dying, or in parlors where mothers, and daughters, and infant children are gathered in terror, never did I so deeply feel before the horrors,-the unmitigated iniquity of war; it." "And now" said the old General to his minister never did I so deeply fee! that it was the "rest assured sir, that a man who is not a better judge of duty of every one who has a voice to speak, preaching than that is wholly unfit to be your companor a pen with which to write, to devote ion." This is very characteristic ; we have no doubt all his influence to promote the abolition Jackson knew how to judge of a sermon, as well as to of this fiend-like work. When Napoleon, with his blood-stained fice until they are good judges of preaching, most of them army, arrived before the walls of Vienna. he planted his batteries, and in less than FAMILY RELIGION .- " Cornelius feared God | ten hours threw three thousand of these micates itself to all around it. Every family hundred of these bomb shells exploded every hour, five every minute, in the streets and dwellings of this crowded metropolis. Who can imagine the terrors of that dreadful night when, amids the thunders of artillery, the cry and the uproar of contending armies, and conflagrations breaking out on every side, these terrible shells, like fiery meteors with portentous glare, were streaking the air, and descending like hail stones upon the doomed city. Crashing through the roofs of the dwellings, they exploded at the fireside, in the very cradle of the infant, blow ing their mangled limbs, with fragments of their demolished homes, far and wide into the air. In this way Napoleon conquered Vienna. In this way England conquered Canton. And in this demoniac Rev. William Eligerbolt. pastor of the work thousands of our countrymen are now ready to engage for the acquisition ing Divine service in the pulpit on Sunof Texas and Oregon. The whole city of day, some rascal entered the vestry-room, New York was thrown into excitement and, arguing that as the reverend gentleby the tale of the explosion of this one man had on his surplice and gown, he shell, and there is scarcely a newspaper could not possibly want his coat and vest, in the land which did not record the dread- he took those articles from the peg on ful story. And yet is the business of war which they hung, and walked off with to cast these shells by thousands among them, the men and boys who crowd the ships of the navy and the merchant fleet, and among the aged men, the mothers, the maidens and the children who throng the dwelling and the pavements of the city. O merciful God, save the nations from the horrors of war! J. S. C. ABBOTT. May, 1845.

ARRIVAL OF THE GREAT WESTERN. ONE DAY LATER.

The steamship Great Western arrrived at New York on Monday morning the 21st about six o'clock. She left Liverpool on the 5th inst. Her papers and letters add little to previous ad. vices.

The debate on the motion for a second reading of the Maynooth Grant Bill, closed in the House of Commons on the evening of the 4th, by a majority of 157 in its favor; thus giving to the ministry another decisive triumph and leaving no doubts as to the final passage of the

The steamship Great Britain had arrived at Liverpool preparatory to her voyage across the Atlantic.

LONDON, Wednesday Evening July 4.

The funds were quiet to-day, without a large amount of business. The news from India by the overland mail, not being of any great political interest, produced no alteration in prices .-Commercially considered, the intelligence is regarded as favorable, and the improved aspect of business in the markets will give an impulse to operations in England. Consols are now quoted ex. div., and therefore stood at the close of the market to-day 99%. Bank stock was firm at 2101 to 2111; Exchequer Bills 61s. to 63s. premium ; India Stock 279 to 280 ; Three per cents reduced 991 to 1; Three and a quarter per cents 1021 to 2.

LONDON, July 4th.

The sales of Cotton for the week ended this day prove to be 60,990 bales, which is rather larger than the previous estimates, and the American descriptions consist of 13,060 Upland at 31 to 41d; 23,360 Orleans 3 to 7d; 15,960 Mobile and Alabama 35 to 43; and 570 Sea Island at 91 to 19d per lb .- about 19,000 of it taken on speculation. Prices to-day just the same as yesterday.

From the continent there is little of interest. letter to the Courier and Enquirer, dated "PARIS, July 2," represents France as becomconcluded their session-giving a vast amount of business the go-by, of which was a large amount of rail road business. This is the result of the French Government meddling in all matters. "The summer," says this letter,-"hitherto has been rather wet, but not so much so as to occasion alarm for the magnificent crops and herbage, with which, under Divine Providence, we seem destined to be blest."

COUNT THE COST.

"I respect the man," says Goethe, " who knows distinctly what he wishes." The greater part of all mischief in the world arises from the fact that men do not sufficiently understand their own aims. They have undertaken to build a tower, and spend no more labor on the foundation than would be necessary to erect a hut. Is not this an exact description of most men's strivings ?- Every man undertakes to build his tower, and no one counts the cost .--In all things the times are marked by a want of steady aim and patient industry. There is scheming and plotting in abundance, but no considerable, persevering effect. The young man branched into life with no definite course in view. If he goes into trade, he has perhaps a general desire to be rich, but he has at the same time an equally strong desire for present gratification and luxurious living. He is unwilling to pay the price of his ambition. He endeavors to secure the present, and lets go the future. He turns seed time into harvest, eats the corn which he ought to plant. If he goes into professional life, he sets out with a general desire to be eminent, but without considering in what particular he wishes to excel, and what is the price of that excellence. So he divides his time and talents among a great variety of pursuits, endeavoring to be all things, he becomes superficial in proportion as he is universal, and having acquired a brief reputation, as worthless as it is short lived, sinks down into hopeless insignificance.

with all his house."-Piety, like the sun com- horrible projectiles into the city. Three is a little kingdom of which the master is prince: it is a little flock, which the master is a shepherd, appointed by Heaven to govern it in righteousness, and to guide it in the way of peace. Such is the true use of that power which God hath granted unto men, from him that ruleth over millions to him that ruleth only a single servant. The manners of a family depend upon those of the master. His principles and practices soon diffuse themselves through the house ; and the piety or profaneness, the sobriety or intemperance, the sloth or diligence of servants, discover, to the world the nature of that fountain from which they flow. "Cornelius feared God, with all his house." He set a good example and took care that they should follow it. He honored the name of God himself, and it was not blasphemed by his domestics. While he was proceeding to heaven he did not send them, or let them go, to hell, but caried them all with him. He 'feared God with all his house ;' there was not one wicked or disorderly person in it.

The Stock Market has been gloomy for near three weeks, and a decline of { per cent. in public securities has taken place. In Railroad shares, however, the fall has been infinitely greater in proportion, but as this state of things arises more out of a scarcity of money than any other cause, an improvement at no very distant day is looked for.

The same letter says that another struggle is inevitable in Spain-that the Son of Don Carlos stands no chance to marry the young Queen, and that the moment when this becomes obvious, he or his partizans will attempt to upset the present Government, and the writer predicts, will be defeated.

An arrival at Paris on the 1st July from the Levant, showed that all was for the moment tranquil in Turkey, Greece and Egypt, but that in Syria the war continued between the Drusses and the Marronetes.

GOOD PREACHING.

An anecdote is going the rounds of the papers, relating to the opposition which the late Gen. Jackson had, while Chief Magistrate to the employment of a young man as Secretary of Legation by the newly appointed Minister to Russia, on account of his want of qualification. The Minister having formed a high opinion of the talents of the young man, wished to know the ground of the old Hero's opposition. The General promptly replied, "He is not a good judge of preaching." It seems that the General had heard with great pleasure the justly celebrated Dr. Durbin, of the Methodist Episcopal Church preach in Washington City, which sermon the aforesaid young man heard also. At a subsequent time the sermon being the topic of conversation between the General and the young man, he very pertly told the President that the "sermon was all froth and Dr. Durbin a humbug." At which the old General took fire, and told him, " My young man, you are a humbug yourself, and don't know fight a battle, but if men are not to be employed in ofwould remain unfulfilled. We opine, there are few, very few good judges of "good preaching."
