

POETICAL.

THE WIFE.

BY MISS CORNWALL BARN WILSON. Come share my watch, my cherub child, Look over the plains with me;

SPEECH

MR. STEWART, of PENN., IN DEFENCE OF THE PROTECTIVE POLICY.

Delivered in the House of Representatives of the United States, May 27th, 1846.

But he wished to be understood correctly. Mr. S. did not say that the effect of all duties was to diminish prices; on the contrary, he did not deny that it was the effect of some duties to increase prices.

But the gentleman had also said, that while the tariff was oppressive on the interests of agriculture and of labor, it was highly beneficial to invested capital to the rich monopolists, the lords of the loom.

they should see what Congress would do with the tariff at the present session. Did this hurt those who already owned manufacturing establishments?

The rest of the country was comparatively young in manufactures. They still needed the helping hand of Government; they wanted protection in their infancy.

To show the practical operation of the protective policy, he would take, by way of illustration, the neighboring iron works at Mount Savage, near Cumberland.

Mr. HOLMES, of S. C., put a question to Mr. STEWART, whether all this was not done by taxing the South for the benefit of New England?

How was it that Southern gentlemen could shut their eyes to the result of their own unwise policy? Let them look how they stood, and then look at the North.

deadly hostility to every thing connected with the manufactures, internal improvements, and progress of every kind.

The gentleman asked whether all this benefit did not grow out of a tax upon the South? Mr. S. would answer the gentleman; if these factories were built by government, then this might, to some extent, be true.

Not the slightest token was visible, to mark one tent in the group from another, there were no sentinels or any military parade present; a chubby sun-burnt child, "belonging to the camp," was playing near by in the grass.

gentleman that last year we imported 211,327 bushels, paying a duty of ten cents a bushel—15,045 from Ireland, while Ireland took of all our grain only 790 bushels of corn, not a barrel of flour, cornmeal, or a bushel of grain, or its productions in any other form.

THE OPPOSING GENERALS, TAYLOR AND ARISTA.

The editor of the New Orleans Tropic, just returned from camp, is giving pleasant episodes in the history of the army of occupation, and says:—The contrast of the two commanding Generals, Taylor and Arista, in the pomp and circumstance of war was characteristic of the different institutions under which they lived.

The marquee of the commanding General of the Mexican forces was bell-shaped, and of great size. The material of which it was composed, was ornamented by parti-colored stripes, giving it a holiday appearance.

Bands of rude music almost constantly rent the air with their noisy labor. The furniture of the marquee was rich; the costly figured chests of the camp were the ornamental furniture; upon their tops reposed in ostentation the heavy silver service of the table, or the elegantly finished "maps of the campaign."

At a mile above the city of Matamoros, a little distance from the banks of the Rio Grande, is to be seen (June 1st) some stunted and ill-shaped trees, which bend their gnarled and almost leafless limbs over a group of three or four small tents, only different from those of the common soldier in their rear, in this, that they are heterogeneously disposed of for shade, instead of being in a line, regardless of all else than military precision.

There was no pomp about his tent; a couple of rough blue chests served for his table, on which were strewn in masterly confusion a variety of official-looking documents; a quiet-looking citizen-dressed personage made his appearance upon hearing the significant call of "Ben," bearing on a tin salver, a couple of black bottles and shining tumblers, arranged around an earthen pitcher of Rio Grande water.

With the highest possible admiration of the republican simplicity of the manners and character of General Taylor, we bade him good day, with a higher appreciation of our native land, for possessing such a man as a citizen, and of its institutions for moulding such a character.

AUGUST SESSIONS, 1845.

WE, the Grand Jurors of Rowan, Present, That the most of the business brought before us during this Term, has been in consequence of drunkenness, and that a great deal of it has been occasioned by and through the public treating of candidates for public offices at different times and places; consequently we cannot help but view the practice as an evil, and a growing evil.
