From the National Intelligencer. THE OREGON NEGOTIATION.

Thrust out of our columns to-day, by the extent of the official publication which occupies so much of our space, we regret to be unable to place at once before our readers the interest. lo ing Address of the N. York Chamber of Commerce to our Minister just returning from the negotiation of the Oregon treaty, and Mr. Mc. Lang's reply, which have just reached us in the New York papers. Besides being of a spirit commending them to the public approval, one of them (the reply) embraces matter that is highly worthy of attention.

We have at present, however, only space to sir that this latter document contains one paragraph which though most sound and right in the view which it takes of the basis on which Mr. McLane thought, in going out on his mistion, that the two nations should treat-entirely surprises us by its explicit declaration that these were President POLK's views of our rights and of the objects at which the negotiation should alm. Nothing could well be more opposite han the sentiments which our representative thus attributes to the President as his genuine ones, and those which, down to this very Mesage submitting the treaty of the Senate, lie in every way exhibited to the people of this country. The passage of which we speak amounts to an averment, from an authority the highest that could well be, to Mr. Polk never entertained any but the most moderate and rational ideas as to our claims in Oregon. The passage which contains this averment is so brief and comprehensive, that, intending to publish is our next paper both the Address and Reply, we separate if from the body of the Reply, that our readers, may judge for themselves, from the text, rather than from our comment.

"Having some knowledge, from my official position at the time, of the policy and objects of the conventiontion of 1828, I am quite persuaded that its main design was to lead, in a future partition of the territory, to the recognition of enr claim to the country, not north, but south of the 49th parallel, and between that and the Columbia river. A division of the country upon that principle, with a reasonable regard to rights grown up under the joint possession, always appeared to me to afford a just and practical basis for an amicable and honorable adjustment of the subject. Such, also, I was satisfied were the views of our Government at the time I engaged in my recent mission; and in earnestly and steadily laboring to effect a settlement upon that basis. I was but representing the policy of my own Government, and faithfully promoting the intentions and wishes of the President."

GOOD OLD DOCTRINES.

We are battling as hard as we can for the good old doctrines that carried Jackson into power in 1828. It is refreshing to read some of the old Hero's writings in the better and pu- this question." rer days of the country. See how "the General" lays down the Whig law to Mr. Cole-

"I will ask what is the real situation of our agriculturists ! Where has the American farmer a market for his surplus products? Except for Cotton, he has neither a foreign nor a home market. Does this not clearly prove, where there is no market, either at home or abroad that there is too much labor employed in agriculture, and that the channels for labor should be multiplied? Common sense at once points out the remedy. Draw from agriculture this superabundant labor, employ it in mechanism and manufactures, thereby creating a home market for your breadstuffs, and distributing labor to the most profitable account, and benefits to the country will result. Take from agriculture in the United States, six hundred thousand men, women, and children, and you will at once give a home market for more bread-stuffs, than all Europe now furnishes us. In short, sir, we have been too long subject to British merchants. It is time we should become a little more Americanized."

Will any one argue that Gen. Jackson was wrong when he wrote the above, or does the "progressive democracy" gradually grow so perfect that the doctrines of old Hickory are to be repudiated. We wish some of our demoeratic friends would say, whether truth varies with the times, or whether they have not swerved from those good old dectrines that carried them into power, but which they have treated with contempt ever since accident rendered it possible for them to put them in practice. N. O. Tropic.

TRUTH FROM SOUTH CAROLINA.

We have always held that protection is of bere importance to the agriculturists than to any ther class of citizens, which the following leter from S. Carolina, published in the Charleswen Mercury, the Free Trade organ, of the 29th of July, fully admits and conclusively shows. fren in South Carolina, the very hot-bed of the anti-Protectionists, we find that the favorite polby of the country is avowed by some, who have not allowed their better judgments to be cloudby free trade dogmas and dangerous theories.

BARNWELL DISTRICT, July 15. Every body in this section is engaged in ng the grass which has sprung up luxually during the late rains. Corn looks badly, cotton worse. There has been a good deal provision crops, and I fear there will be ore next. A purely agricultural people, you will always lead a miserable existence. It crops are good there is no one to purchase, ad all they can get is a mere living. On the abroad. Even the prospect for fruit, so North American.

fine a mouth ugo, is likely to be cut off. The apples are falling before they are ripe; peaches have but little flavor. Melons of all kinds are comparatively tasteless; and the grapes, which promised so well, are rotting by the bushel. Such is our fate, and I presume we must submit to it. Had we less opposition to a fair Tariff in Carolina, and a little more diversity of labor, we might be supplied with means, when our crops are short, to purchase from abroad."

DIRECT TAXES COMING!

The "Journal of Commerce," noticing some charges the Providence Journal and Richmond Whig have brought against it, of favoring direct taxation instead of a collection of taxes by the customs, says:

"We state the truth about a rising favor for direct taxation, and give it as our opinion that further agitation of the tariff question will be likely to result in further reductions: and these papers meet the matter with slang and tell us we threaten."

The Journal then does threaten excises and stampts, instead of tariffs on imports, and an income tax also-" a tax say on all incomes greater than five hundred dollars annually; a tax on gold watches, coaches, notes of hand, &c.; would such a plan (adds the Journal) please the masses, and upset the Democracy?"

The "Globe" has an article something in the same vein:

"It is now no uncommon opinion among a large number of our people that a system of direct taxation will have to be adopted ultimately in this county, and we believe throughout the world. But few who believe in the truth of this doctrine attempt to conceal their opinions. An expression of their opinions no longer injures but rather strengthens their popularity with the people. There is a disposition among Democrats to give the new tariff a fair trial, so that capital invested under it may have a fair chance to prepare for a change, still further reducing the duties; for assured, there will be no change but one of still further reduction. A system of direct taxation would benefit ninety-nine men out of every hundred. Therefore we are willing to appeal to the interests of the people in settling

FROM THE SEAT OF WAR - A RIOT AMONG THE VOLUNTEERS.

The steamer McKim, arrived at N. Orleans on Saturday, Sept. 5th, from Brazos St. Jago, which place she left on the 2d inst. From the Delta we have received an account of a most disgraceful and bloody riot between five companies of the Georgia regiments who went on board of a steamboat, to be carried up to Camargo. Two of these companies had been at variance several days-and being brought so close together, quarrels ensued, and words soon led to blows, and in a short time a general riot was raging on the upper deck.

Col. Baker, of the 4th Regiment of Illinois volunteers, encamped about half a mile from the boat, determined to tender his services to quell the riot; and, accordingly repaired thither with a small force, for that purpose. He was warmly received by the rioters, who met him with bayonets set, and against whom he defended himself with his drawn sword. But he was finally shot through the neck, and was carried off as dead. The riot continued to rage on until several companies of Illinois volunteers arrived with ball-cartridges; it then soon ceased, and the Georgians were disarmed and put under strong guard, and were so kept, up to the time of the departure of the express, the next day.

Col. Baker's wound was not considered mortal. On the morning of 1st. inst., about 30 of the wounded (some mortally) were lying upon the boat and shore, and it was generally believed that the dead (at least eight or ten.) had been thrown overboard. It is said the Col. of Geo. Reg. shot several of his own men, ringleaders in the riot.

The N. O. Bee speaking of this riot says, the number of killed and wounded amounts to 20 or 30, besides which some 8 or 10 were thrust or thrown overboard and drowned.

There is nothing further of much interest from the Rio Grande except that the steamer Enterprise burst her boilers on the 21st ultimo, killing five and wounding several others, out of about 150 persons on board.

A courier is now in this city, despatched by Gen. Taylor, from the head quarters of the Amer. army, and we are informed on the most reliable authority, that no proposals for peace whatever have yet been made either by the Mexican or American Governments, or by any of their accredited agents. This messenger left after Santa Anna's arrival in Mexico, and after he had had sufficient time to make advances, if he intended to do so, towards our government. This news we hardly expected, but it is all explained by the fact that Santa Anna had given assurances to his friends that, in returning to resume the command of the army, he should most implicitly follow the public will and inclinations of the people of Mexico, in regard to the war. He is now waiting to learn the popular feeling. This is one item. The second item of intelligence brought by this courier is that the Ministers of England, France and Spain, in the Capital of Mexico have given the gravest assurances to Sonta Anna that neither he nor his government This arises evidently from the immense damages
