MERCHANTS' STEAMBOAT COMPANY .- This enterprising Company, says the Wilmington Commercial of the 22d ultimo, have launched another steamboat built expressly to meet the low waters of the Cape Fear, to ply between this porl and Fayetteville. She was built at Smithville by Mr. R. B. POTTER, under the superintendence of Maj. R. G. She is very appropriately named after that sterling western county, " Roscan."

It is said, that shortly after the adjournment of Congress, a friend of the President approach. ed him, and congratulated him upon his success in consumating every prominent measure of his Administration. The President replied-This is so, but every measure has weakened me ! And it is true to the very letter. OPENING OF THE YADKIN.

To the Editors' of the Watchman :

GENTLEMEN-I have read with some interest the notice of Mr. Mabry, calling a meeting to take into consideration the practicability and being a subject upon which I have for many years felt deeply interested ; and having had town, and above several difficult shoals on that river; but at its nearest point to the town, the river is within two miles of Cross Creek which passes through Favetteville. A stream that has also many mills and long ponds, and could be rendered navigable with a small expense or canalled to the centre of the town without any deep cut; or boats could be let into the river at its mouth with perhaps, but one lock, except those that the mill owners would be required to construct and keep up. The ridge between Little River and Cross Creek at the nearest points is not high and could be easily canalled. From the mouth of Crane Creek, on the Yadkin, a firm ridge can be pursued through the town of Salisbury, to the Catawba river without crossing a single water course.

The country between Flat Swamp and the head of navigation on Little River, of Moore county, is a firm gravily soil, on which a road could be made excellent and durable by merely elevating it in the centre and giving the rain water an opportunity to pass speedily off. It never cuts up except when the water is permitted to stand some time after a rain. If this route was adopted, an inland town at both extremities of the road would spring up, and draw capital into the heart of our State. And the materials for macadamising a road between these two points are abui.dant. YADKIN.

MEXICAN AFFAIRS.

The following paragraphs from the Union of Saturday night will apprise the reader of the present posture of our relations with Mexico. The Union has a long article on the subject, the amount of which is, that it is the duty of our Government to prosecute the war vigorously, and not to be delayed by the tediousness of Mexican negotiation :

We can state, upon competent authority, that the report is not true, that Mexico has refused to negotiate with the government of the United States until we shall withdraw our armies from her territory and our fleets from her coasts .--This report is absolutely destitute of foundation. The government of that republic has determined to refer the President's overture, to open negotiations for peace, to the constituent Congress of Mexico, which will assemble in the beginning of December, (we believe the 6th.)

Negotiation with Mexico.-We are able to put an end, in a more explicit manner than we Original Attachment levied on 120 Acres of land. have hitherto been able to do, to all mystery and all doubt about the despatches by the Princeton. The preceding paragraph gives the true version of the transaction; the precise form of the correspondence which has taken espediency of opening the Yadkin River. This place between the two republics, we presume, ment has not positively declined our overturenor has she accepted it upon conditions-she has neither refused nor accepted it; but has 1846. referred our proposition to the constituent Congress of December, to decide the whole question.
