

OH, IT'S LOVE !!

The following extracts will show the definitions love, as given by some of the greatest of our Poets Love stuck his bayb deep in my quivering heart, And acting thus, he played a barb-erous part. Hood Was I ever in love ? Och, sure, and wasn't I, Know all about the soft palaver ? Doesn't I, Stale your arms round her neck, give a wink, perhaps

Take a kiss, then a squeeze, Och. hullaboo. Moore. To sit with her in some ice-cream saloon, And feed together with a single spoon ; To look into her eyes and whisper " lovey," While she responds with sighing accents, "dovey." To place your hand on heart, and feel it beat, Then tear it forth and dash it at her feet. Byron Ah This is love.

I knew a man, sir, who was deep in love, And knocked his beaver into a wheelbarrow ! And questioned closely, sir, he couldn't tell The difference 'twixt a bootjack and a inckase. Pope. Sublime, it came refulgent in its power. And pounced upon her heart ; from thence. Strange is the contest she was there transformed, And never dressed her baby doll again. Milton. Tis very sweet to tend a tater patch With her you love, and spade in hand Unearth the vegetables with a delve, To see them roll luxuriant at her feet.

> From the Union Magazine. THE MERRY SLEIGH BELL.

Merrily dash we o'er valley and hill, All but the sleigh-bell is sleeping and still. O, bless the dear sleigh-bell ! there 's nought can compa To its loud merry peal, as it breaks on the ear.

As swiftly o'er valley and mountain we rove, The moon riding brightly and calmly above, Dall sorrow shall hear its inspiring knell, In the loud, cheerful peal of the merry sleigh-bell.

Now kissed by the moon-beam, outstripping the wind The cool, sweeping night-gale is panting behind, Nor leave we it aught our fleet pathway to tell, But the far-distant peal of the merry sleigh-bell.

Where the white plain is smoothest in safety we ride, Where the deep drift is highest we fearlessly glide, O'er the steep we ascend, and we plunge through the dell, To the load, lively peal of the merry sleigh-bell.

DISAPPOINTMENT. THE FOUNDED ON FACT.

A few years since, a country physician, residing in the good old town of Concord, became deeply smitten with the charms of a young lady, at an evening party in Boston. At the time, he had made no avowal of his passion, but swallowed it along with his sweetmeats. However, the sugar plumbs, candy snaps, &c., &c., soon evaporated, and in the short space of a week, nothing remained of that eventful hight but the incipient flame which grew brighter and more tooublesome than ever, and which he determined to digest, through the medium of a billet-doux .--The billet-doux was written on valentine paper, with a dove quill ; sealed with cupid darts, and despatched by post, to the fair damsel in Boston. It merely contained an encomium to the lady's beauty, and a modest declaration of the 'tender passion.' To his inexpressible fidgets and felicity, this letter was answered in a way that gave new life to his hopes. It even went as far as to hint, that the lady her-Sappho. | self had, at first sight, conceived something more than friendship for him, and that his letter had disentangled her from a labyrinth of despair. These letters were followed by others, 'quick, thick, and heavy as a thunder shower,' each more bright and ominous than the last; like the threatenings of a volcano, which generally begins in distant rumbling, but progressing in flame and bustle, soon became riper for explosion. Nearly two months elapsed since the interview, which time had been delightfully employed in writing love-letters and drawing similies between eyes and stars-lips and poppies-cheeks and roses-and so forth, when our hero received all but the summum bonum of his happiness, by a letter inviting him to Boston.

·S'death, sir, I see no cause for merriment.'

'None, truly, in the idea of a man coming to kidnap my wife ; but there is some in fact that he has been courting my mad cousin-in-law, Matt F----, for, if those are not his true characters, I'm no true Christian.'

Our hero of the billet-doux paused ;such things might be, and have been ; the name corresponded, and as he had never used but the initials of the first, at last the truth flashed upon him that he had been all this time the dupe of some sympathising wag.

'Can you tell me where the gentleman you suspect resides ?'

'leuppose, sir, as in duty bound, I must ; but I would advise you to take things coolly, as he is a real Lucius O'Trigger, (powder and ball.) and cares no more about shooting a man, than he does about breaking a biscuit.'

This advice, however, was about as effective in calming the disappointed lover as the love tear in a lady's eye-lash would be in extinguishing a volcano.

The Doctor flung himself into his chariot and drove down the street, as if the fillies were mounted by a brace of German hunters. To find the house he was in quest of, to knock, to be admitted-and to be seated almost breathless on a sofa in the drawing room, was but the work of a minute; it was more than ten minutes before he could collect himself sufficiently to explain the object of his visit; and at length when he unfurled his jaws, and raised his eyes to essay, lo! and behold, they encountered an angel. Yes, the sly laughing glances, that stole archly through a pair of downcast eyelashes, were never emitted by mortal optics; so at least thought the Doctor; besides the summer-browned, dimpled cheeked, retiring fairy form before him, belonged to a higher order of beauty than he had ever Any information concerning him will be thankfully rebefore had any conception of. He at once acknowledged the influence of the charms Jail, so that I can get him. by one of his best bows, but in the flutter of making it, he brought a flush upon the lady's nose, by coming plump upon it with his noddle. The gentle maiden, however, smiled a forgiveness, and so charmingly, too, that it completely staggered, or at least changed, the current of his passions : for, when he spoke his voice was more like the supplication of Erato, than that of a disappointed lover.

TEMPERANCE.

BENNINGTON, N. Y.

We have received A Declaration of the No Licens Executive Committee of the town of Bennington, N. Y Its length, and the fact that it was prepared before the Report of the Excise Law was repealed, prevent its insertion. It recommends a removal of all State patronage from the rum trade and an entire prohibition of the traffic in intoxicating liquors as a beverage. They say-

"In some countries, gambling houses being regarded as an evil, are licensed, yet in the State of New York from the chariot, and extracting thunder we venture to define both gambling and keeping gambling houses crimes punishable by our courts. This is not regarded, here, as a very glaring encroachment upon our libertier, yet doubtless it would be in some countries .---And date we to put gambling houses and drinking houses on equal footing? It is true, gambling houses have sir, I cannot challenge my memory as to done their work of misery and ruin. But where one victim has fallen by them, hundreds have fallen to disrase, beggary, and death by the dram shop. Danish the means of drunkenness from the land, and gambling would soon cease to be found. Do this, and nearly all our institutions would be regenerated or invigorated .--Under the influence of this curse, our criminal courts have become sigkly and irresolute. We would refer to the municipalities of Albany, Utica, Buffalo, &c. as well as some of our county courts, where the influence of the dram shop and its adjuncts has had power to trample the law of the State under foot with impunity-and other places where fines have been assessed but have not been collected.

DELIRIUM TREMENS-THE TOMES-COURTS

There is no form in which death approaches, more terrible than that of delirium tremens. No disease induced by a violation of the laws of our being, presents as many horrors. There was never a more awful spectacle presented to human eyes, than that of a fellow being, having wrecked his physical organization and perverted his whole mental organism by intoxicating poisons, suffer- thanks for the intended honor, but I asig the penalty of his evil ways, in the trembling agonies of his exhausted and outraged nature. It seems that the dreadful spectres, the tormenting fiends, the legions of these seven months, and I hope has no demons and myriads of frightful ghosts, ever present in I magination, were sent by some guardian spirit on purpose to warn mankind from the cause of the deplorable malady. Strange that reasoning mortals disregard so er men thus die, yet the moral seems wholly lost.

Last Sunday there was a spirited temperance meeting at the City Prison. While John Hawkins was addressing the audience, one of the prisoners was attacked with trium tremens. Soon after a second was attacked and carried out ; and before he had concluded, another and-" was brought in laboring under the disease. This is Ma had at length given her consent that Miss should receive the Doctor's addresses; and had added to her list of jewels, and even began to talk of a marriage portion of pin money. The gentleman was farther requested to come as stylish as possible, so to ensure the old lady's regard, who had a strong hankering after rent rolls and bank stock ; but, above all, to be sure not to come without himself, which was every thing in the world, that had the slightest attraction for his soul's reflection, his devoted Mary. The gentleman lost no time in preparing for his journey; he disposed of some canal stock at a sacrifice, to purchase a barouche, and changed two stalworth plough horses, with all appurtenances to boot, for a brace of ambling fillies, which seemed intended for the convoys of love. When he arrived in town, he drove rapidly down the street of his charmer, intending to bloom forth in full meridian. After springing from the knocker, the door was opened, and his name was announced.

Walk in, sir-be seated, sir-really, your name, but I think I have some slight recollection of your countenance.'

Probably so, madam, but I had supposed you had been better acquainted with my name than my person; but your daughter-your Mary ?-- Truly, madam, your astonishment surprises me. I mean your daughter, Mary A. E----, to whom I have the honor of being husband elect. I am Dr. James S----, whom you have signified you will receive as son-in-law, and have come post haste from Concord, to marry your daughter.'

· Upon my word, sir, I can only return sure you, my daughter has been married thought of becoming a widow.'

"Hold, madam-have I not your daugh tremendous a lesson ! Every day numbers of our broth- ter's letters in my pocket ? Madam,' said he on rising and extricating some fifty or sixty perfumed billet-doux, 'are

' Madam, if this is the sister of Mr. _____, whom I have the honor of addressing, I lament the circumstances that brings me hither; and yet it were a libel to lament any thing that introducee me to you."

wife from marrying you; but sure you can court and have my sister Betty instead.' The Doctor started and sighed louder than ever-the lady turned her eyes towards the window, which came in visionary contact with the chariot at the and the case set for hearing exparte door.

VEGETABLE UNIVERSAL PILLS.

The startling draw back on nearly all Medicinal Afients has ever been that in their process of purgation and purification, they have also debilitated the system.-Hence purgative medicines have always been regarded as at best but a necessary evil, patients resorting to them for the relief of one disease at the expense of another .-To obviate this, physicians have long sought for an agent that would at the same time purge, purify and strengthen, but their efforts were neurly fruitless, and they had almost despaired of success when the labors of science and research were rewarded by a discovery which fully realized the fondest desires of the Medical Faculty, and which is justly regarded as one of the most important triumphs that Pharmacy has ever achieved. This important desideratum is named Dr. Le Roy's Vegetable Universal Pills, which purify the blood, and remove all corrupt and vitiated humours, and unhealthy accumulations from the body in a manner never before rivalled, and which yet produce no weakness or lassitude whatever, but on the contrary tone the stomach, and invigorate the constitution during the progress of their operations! Dr. Le Roy's Pills, in fact unite those heretofore irreconcilable, but most desirable qualities, evacuation and invigoration for they are at the same time a strengthening purgative, and a purifying tonic.

The two principal ingredients in Dr. Le Roy's Pills are Wild Cherry and Sarsaparilla. So prepared that and polite in his inquiries, he made a gen- each promotes the beneficial effect of the other, the foreral confession of the whole, which a- mer strengthening, while the latter, through its union with various vegetable ingredients, evacuates and parifies; thus they superinduce no torpidity of lassitude of the digestive functions, and hence their operations are attended by no reaction or subsequent costiveness.
