

RUNAWAY SLAVES.

Excitement exists at Washington, growing out of the attempted escape of a number of slaves from that city and from the relative to them, and to their abductors. The Baltimore Sun of the 19th, contains the following account of this affair:

WASHINGTON, April 18th, 1848. The escape, pursuit and recovery of the slaves in this District, seventy-eight in number, has created as much excitement here as the French Revolution. There was one on board in the party from the Virginia shore, below this city. The whole thing being executed with quiet despatch. The pursuit was managed by men from Georgetown, without the aid of police officers, and with great skill and energy. They ought to be entitled to salve—

WASHINGTON, April 18, 1848. Telegraph early this morning, you were apprized of the capture of the "Pearl," which vessel, with her cargo of deluded, defrauded slaves had just been returned to this city. Amongst the people who have been thus successfully duped out of money, obtained honestly or dishonestly—induced to violate a fidelity never before questioned—are men, women and children, born and raised in very best families; colored, it is true, but between whom and their owners feelings of regard, almost amounting to affection, have ever existed.

These people have been beset by a horde of unprincipled, soulless fanatics, who have seduced them from the comforts and privileges of the old homestead—have corrupted the purest principles, and substituted villainy for fidelity—under assurances that these said fanatics would provide a way to their freedom. Their arrival and escort to jail, agitated the entire community—the gates of the prison, and the surrounding neighborhood, have been thronged all day.

Two white men, named Edward Savres and Daniel Drayton, stand committed by Justice Williams, charged, upon the oath of Andrew Hoover, with having stolen and taken away two slaves, the property of said Hoover. Chester English, also white, and probably one of the crew, is committed by Justice Goddard upon a similar charge.

A meeting of the owners is called at the jail tomorrow, at 10 o'clock, A. M., and during the session a re-examination of the accused parties will take place before Justice Williams and Goddard.

Nine or ten others, have not yet been committed. A large crowd of persons have assembled in Seventh street, in front of the New Era office, among which much excitement exists. The prospects of an outbreak are threatening.

By LAST NIGHT'S MAIL. CONGRESS. In the SENATE, on Thursday, a deeply excited debate arose on a motion by Mr. Hale of N. H. for leave to introduce a bill relative to unlawful assemblages in the District. "Stirring speeches were made, (says the Baltimore Patriot,) in which Messrs. Calhoun, Butler, Mangum, Haunegan, Douglass, the two Davises, Foote, and others participated. Mr. Foote rose on his high platform horse, and assured Mr. Hale that if he would come to Mississippi, he would be very much exalted, and said he would have a hand in doing those high honors to his abolition deserts! That is, that they would bring the New Hampshire Senator in Mississippi, if they could catch him out in that State. Mr. Douglass thought his locofoco friend was doing damage to the party, by the use of such terms—that he would drive Locofoco over to the abolition cause in the free States, and cause them to vote for Mr. Hale, the candidate of the abolitionists for the Presidency. So he told Mr. Foote, that his speech was as good as 10,000 votes to the Senator from New Hampshire. Mr. Foote was again upon his high horse by way of explanation. When he had finished, Mr. Douglass said the Mississippiian's explanation was as good as 5,000 more votes to the gentleman from New Hampshire! He had now helped the abolition candidate for the Presidency to 15,000 votes! This amid all the excitement, produced considerable merriment!

subject. The bill proposed was merely intended to hold the city corporation liable for property destroyed by mob violence. Mr. Benton hoped that the whole subject would be dropped, and the regular business proceeded with. Mr. Calhoun spoke with warmth, denouncing the efforts of Northern abolitionists to deprive Southern men of their property. If Northern vessels could not visit Southern waters, without endangering Southern rights, Southern men would prevent them at all. The consequence would be that the question would be directly brought to an issue. If any political event threatened the safety of the Union, it is the slavery question. All matter tending to a collision upon this point should be watched and treated with caution. He trusted therefore that his amendment would not be granted. Mr. Hale replied, and utterly denied that he had in any manner whatsoever directly or indirectly, by council, speech or silence, had any connection with the kidnapping business. Mr. Calhoun abruptly closed the discussion as far as himself was concerned, by observing that he should as soon think of arguing with a maniac, as the Senator from New Hampshire upon the subject. Mr. Mangum deprecated the excitement which prevailed, as well as the ill-considered introduction of the bill. The discussion was continued until a late hour. The Senate adjourned to Monday, without taking the question.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. On Thursday, Mr. Palfrey rose to a privileged question. He wished to offer a resolution, setting forth the proceedings of the mob in the city of Washington, and moving the appointment of a select committee of five to report what action was necessary for the House to take to secure the members from personal threats and violence. Objections were made, but finally withdrawn, and the resolution came regularly up for consideration. Mr. Venable, of North Carolina, then addressed the House in denunciation of the abolitionists. He gave several times to Mr. Haskell and others to interrogate Mr. Giddings, who in reply to one of the questions, admitted that he avowed the right of slaves to run off in an effort to regain freedom, but with this admission acknowledged the supremacy of the law in its relation to whites who abetted them. Mr. V. concluded by moving an amendment increasing the number of the committee to nine. Mr. Toombs, of Georgia, next took the floor, and made a powerful and eloquent speech, denouncing that the House had any right to entertain a question of privilege. Mr. Morse, of Louisiana, next spoke on the same side, and complimented the speech of Mr. Toombs warmly.

Some very severe declarations against Messrs. Giddings, Root, Tuck and Palfrey, generally, but against Mr. Giddings particularly, were made by Messrs. Stephens, Haskell, Toombs and Venable. It was nearly, or quite charged by two or three of these gentlemen, that he had participated in the kidnapping of slaves and sending them off for this district, for which he deserved to be strung up! Several talked of expelling him. He declared that he had neither aided nor abetted in the escape of any slave. Were he to do so, he should expect to abide the rigor of the laws on the subject. He had visited the prison, and voluntarily offered to procure counsel and to stand by and see unharmed from mob violence, the white men imprisoned there on a charge of kidnapping the slaves taken off by the schooner Pearl, but he had done nothing to procure the escape of any slave in the District. [Mr. G. had visited the jail, but was admonished to retire speedily, which he did.] Without coming to any definitive action, the House, on motion, adjourned. On Friday, the subject was resumed, and Mr. Stanton of Tenn. commenced a speech.—This is the latest account we have as yet.

$25 REWARD. A RUNAWAY from the subscriber, residing near Concord, North Carolina, about the 1st of December last, a negro boy by the name of JOHN. John is a very bright colored mulatto, is about five feet 10 inches in height, straight and well built—has long dark hair and wears it combed over in front and straight down over his ears and the back part of his head—and when excited or heated by exercise his face assumes a flush and red complexion. He has a scar on his left hand and one upon his right wrist. He has an axe scar on his left foot, as well as recollects, extending from the end of his big toe near to the middle of the foot. He took with him when he left me a good pair of cassimere pantaloons, and a good brown overcoat and a pair of boots. He may have procured free papers and attempted to make his way to a free State, as a free man of color, or he may have attempted to pass for a white man, his color would well justify. But I am rather inclined to believe he is lurking about Charlotte, as he was raised in that town and has numerous relations and acquaintances in and around that place—or he may be about Asheville, N. C., having a brother living there. Any information respecting him, given to me at Concord, N. C., will be thankfully received. And the above reward will be given to any person who will deliver him to me, or confine him in any jail so that I get him. WM. C. MEANS. Concord, N. C. March 22, 1848.—tf 48.

The above reward will be given for the apprehension and confinement in any jail so that I get him, or for his delivery in Troy, Montgomery county, N. C. JACOB LASSITER, Jailor. Troy, N.
