the most distinguished prophets of the nineteenth century, I, in company with a few friends, left thisplace a fewr days since to visit Father Miller, the modern Prophet, whose fame is so extensive and whose prophecies at one time created such a sensation throughout the country. We found him living in a plain but comfortble dwelling in Washington County, N.Y., surrounded by the common comforts of life, but nothing that seemed to convey the idea of affluence or luxury. If he be in the optient circumstances he is sometimes represented. there is indeed but little display about his residence or Although there is a peculiar neatness within his house, the outward appearance seems to indicate the gradual waste of time. We were received by Mr. Miller himself in a very cordial manner, and entertained for a couple of hours quite agreeably.

Heas 67 years of age and is evidently in bad health. suffering under some pulmonary disease, accompanied with fartal loss of vision, which renders him unfit for Dry Goods, Hats, Caps and Boanets, reading and writing-a misfortune he seems very much to deplore. Probably a little chagrined at the non-fulsummer of his predictions of '43, and the consequent mortification by the taunts of his enenties, he is neverthere sangulue that the time is near at hand when this earthis to be purified by fire, and the second advent to take place.

After a review of the whole Scriptures, he has found his ho small gratification, that in making out his chronological table, he was seven years in advance of the nmers but that there now remains no doubt, if the Scripures be true, that the second Advent will assuredly take Weavers Reeds, Brass Clocks, (warranted) arelin 4850-a time he looks to with a great deal of michighe, and longs for its coming, when the wicked are to be destroyed-the righteous to be changed in the iwinkling of an eye from mortality to immortality, and then through eternity to occupy this earth made a heaven by the presence of none but saints, and the entire anaibiliation of all that is evil.

Such is a summary of the views he entertains .-Whether they are the delusions of a fertile imagination, accompanied with a thirst for fame, or whether they were from the first ingenious devices got up for pecumity considerations, we can't divine.

He is evidently a man of most remarkably retentive
