Thou solemn month! I hear thy voice; It tells my soul of other days, When but to five was to reloice, When earth was levely to my gaze

Obscuring every western star.

Oh! visions bright-oh, blessed hours, Where are their living raptures now I ask my spirit's wearied powers-I ask my pale and fevered brow !

I look to nature and behold My life's dim emblem's ruelling round, In hues of crimson and of gold--The year's dead honor on the ground And sighing with the winds, I feel While their low pinions murmur by, How much their sweeping tones reveal Of life and human destiny.

When Spring's delightsome moments shone, They came in zephyrs from the West. They bore the woodlarks melting tone, They stirred the blue lakes glassy breast. Through summer, fainting in the heat,

They lingered in the forest shade; But changed and strengthen'd now, they beat In storm, o'er mountain, glen and glade

How like those transports of the breast When life is fresh and joy is new, Soft as the haleyon's downy nest, And transient all as they are true ! They stir the leaves in that bright wreath

Which hope about her forehead twines, Till Grief's hot sighs around it breathe, Then Pleasure's lip its smile resigns. Alas, for Time, and Death, and Care, What gloom about our way they fling !

Life clouds in Antumn's gusty air. The burial pageant of the Spring! The dreams that each successive year Seemed bathed in bucs of brighter pride. At last like withered leaves appear, And sleep in darkness side by side!

BOMMER METHOD.

much of what in reality constitutes the most valuable part or essence of the decomposing materials is unavoidably dissipated and borne off. The system of Bommer, together with a numberless others of a cognate character, promises to be of great adwantage to the agriculturist, and is, in my opinion, entiright; but in the catch-penny world, all things of real value, as well as many things of no value-have their price; but in recommending a system by which a farmer is enabled to secure to himself an immediate and unquestionable advantage from what is usually considered a useless encumbrance to the soil-even though it subject the operator to some expense in procuring the " right"-I feel that I am amenable to no charge or imputation which a single breath is not sufficient to refute.

I am persuaded that-if results are to be relied on, a perfectly safe adviser in the great business which he writing about. lias undertaken. Still, no one can avail himself of the advantages resulting from the discoveries made by him without a disbursement; and this I have no doubt, although a small objection, in itself considered will be the means of deterring hundreds-ay, thousands from participating in the good it is calculated to effect.

In this way it is certainly possible for the farmer to avail-himself of a very efficient and valuable assistant, and at comparatively small expense. If, indeed. we look at the increased value of the pasture lands, which may be cleared extraneous herbage, and deteriorating vegetables of all kinds to supply the decomposable organic materials for the combustion, the process will appear anything but expensive. Many of our pastures are almost wholly covered over the extent of their surface with shrubs and other species of worthless vegetaton, which greatly circumscribe the range of food, and materially detract from their value-all of which by this process, may be converted to a valuable use and made to contribute an important and lasting benefit to the soil. I hope the numerous readers of the Telegraph, who are interested in agricultural improvement, will candidly ponder this suggestion; it is worthy of their attention, and cannot be examined too carefully, or too soon, A MONTGOMERY COUNTY PARMER.

USEFUL HINTS TO PUBLIC SPEAKERS. is a useful fact in the history of sound that the loudest noises always perish on the spot where they are produced; whereas musical notes will be heard at a great distance. Thus, if we approach within a mile or two of a town or village in which a fair is held, we may hear very ed by any faintly the clamor of the multitude, but more distinctly the organs and other musical instruments which are played for their amusement. If a cremona violin, a real Amati, be played by the side of a modern fiddle, the latter will sound much louder of the two; but the sweet, brilliant tone of the Amati will be heard at a distance the other cannot reach. Dr. Young on the authority of Dutham, states that at Gibraltar, the human voice may be heard at a greater distance than that of any other animal. Thus, when the cottager in the woods, or in the open plane wishes to call her husband, who is working at a distance, she does not shout, but raises her voice to a musical key, which she knows from habit, and by that means reaches his ear. The loudest roar of the largest lion could not reach so far: "This 3 property of music in the human voice," says Cooper, "is strikingly shown in the Cathedrals abroad. Here the mass is on entirely performed in musical sounds,and becomes audible to every devotee however placed in the remotest part of the church. Whereas, if the mass had been read, the sound would not have traveled beyond the precincts of the choir." Those orators who are heard in large assemblies most distinctly, and at the greatest distance, are those who, by modulating the voice render it more musical. Loud speakers are seldom heard to advantage. Burke's voice is said to have been a sort of lofty cry, which tended as much as the formality of his discourse, in the House Commons, to send the members to their distinctly heard; "his middle tones were sweet, rich, and beautifully varied," says a writer, describing the orator;-"when he raised his voice to its highest pitch, the house was completely filled with the volume of sound, and the effect was awful, except when he wished to cheer or animate, and then he had the STOP THE RUNAWAYS. One great obstacle the country printer has to contend against, is the application of machinery, which reduces the cost of the city contemporary, and which is not available to him. Then, again, how many of the numerous Dollar prints which come so directly in conflict with him, are but a reprint of matter which has already brought a large profit in the daily.
