I have known teachers, and ged down to profligacy. I have known ministers of religion, in and out of the Establishment, of high academic honors, of splendid eloquence, nay, of vast usefulness, whom it has fascinated and hurried over the precipice of public inlamy, with their eyes open, and gazing with horror on their fate. I have known men of the strongest and clearest intellect, and of vigorous resolution, whom it has made weaker than children and fools. I have known gentlemen of refinement and taste whom it has debased into brutes. I have known statesmen, lawyers, and judges whom it has killed. I have known kind husbands and fathers whom it has turned into monsters. I have known honest men whom ted and take the paper. it has made villains. "Is it not notorious that under the ravages of drunkenness the land mourns?-That it is this which-I may almost say exclusively-fills our prisons, our workbouses, our lunatic asylums, our dens of pollution, and our hospitals; which causes most of the shipwrecks, fires, fatal accidents, crimes, outrages, and suicides that load the columns of our newspapers; which robs numberless wives of a husband's affection, and numberless children of a parent's fondness; which strips thousands of homes of every comfort, deprives scores of thousand of children of educaplaces of worship almost empty, and so many Mechanics' Institutes languishing. whilst the pot-houses are crowded ; which brings down (it is estimated) sixty thousand of our population every year to a drunkard's grave?

Serenating a Young Lady .- A friend of one of our contemporaries tells the fol-

In my young days I was extravagantly fond of attending parties, and somewhat celebrated for playing on the flute. Hence it was generally expected that when an invitation was extended that my flute would accompany me. I visited a splendid party one evening, and was called upon to favor the company with a tune on the flute. - I, of course, immediately complied with the request. The company appeared delighted, but more particularly so was a young lady, who raised her hands and exclaimed it was beautiful, delightful, &c. I, of course was highly delighted, and immediately formed a resolution to serenade the young lady on the following night.

I started the next night, in company with several young friends, and arrived, as I supposed at the lady's residence, but made a glorious mistake by getting under the window of an old Quaker. . . Now, said I. behold the sentimality of this young lady the moment I strike up the 'Last Rose of Summer.'" I struck up, but the window remained closed, and the boys began to smile.

"Ob, said I, 'that's nothing; it would not be in good taste to raise the window on the first air.' I next struck up 'Old Robin Gray.' Still the window remained closed. The boys sniekered, and I felt somewhat flat.

Once more, boys, said I, and she must come.' I struck up again, ' My love is like the red, red rose.' Still there was no demonstration. sing 'Home, Sweet Home,' and if that don't bring her, I'll give up.'

We struck up, and as we finished the last line the window was raised.

That's the ticket, boys, I knew he could fetch her.

But instead of the beautiful young lady, it turned out to be the old Quaker, in his night cap and dressing gown.

'Friend;' said he, 'thee was singing of thy home, and, if I recollect right, thee said there was no place like home? Thee is not wanted here-thee, nor none of thy company. Farewell.'

We, and our hats, went home.

If you want to know how an election is going keep your eye on the country press. If you want to ascertain any thing of real interest in regard to the great interior of the continent, keep up with the interior Journals. There are a great many supposed correspondents from the "interior." Notice how eagerly those letters are read -how elaborately displayed in the "front place," The correspondent is a humbug,

In the management of a city paper there must be a system-a method which gives to each man his particular duty .-This very system makes the paper stupid. In the country paper, perhaps, there will be editorials and communications during the year, from every acre of the district. This gives the paper vitality and fresh-Is it to be wondered at, then, that the country papers should have such an influence in a Republican Government?

Merchants make a great mistake when they put their advertisements in a city paper to the exclusion of a country one. Persons in the country read every thingtion with them.
