

AN ABOLITIONIST A GENTLEMAN.
The New York Mirror, in an article on abolitionists, having used the sentence "We have learned that an abolitionist is a gentleman,"

The Editor of the Evening Mirror:
The above paragraph I cut from your paper of yesterday. It is either a sentiment believed by you or an unwarranted slander upon a whole class of your fellow citizens, or by the sin, real or fancied, of one. If your self-respect would forbid your publishing for me, for I am an "Abolitionist," the latter, my self-respect forbids my addressing in your paper. If then you prefer to remark go uncorrected, please make up the bill of T. S. Berry & Co., to date, forward payment, and discontinue the advertisement.

Respectfully,
T. S. BERRY, 297 Broadway.
The Mirror replies as follows:
The above communication is addressed to the Editor of the Mirror, and not marked as such. We take it for granted that the writer desires the full benefit of a public avowal of himself as an "Abolitionist." Instead of regarding the expression quoted from the Mirror, as unbecomingly re-asserting the fact that "we are yet to learn that an Abolitionist can be a gentleman," We will confess, however, that our personal acquaintance with men of that description is very limited, and may have been inaccurate. We have not the honor of knowing Mr. Berry; but on inquiry at the publication office of the Mirror, learn that he is an agent for the sale of Pianofortes, manufactured by Boston by Messrs. Hallet Davis & Co. In order to draw sharply the line of distinction indicated by the remark at which Mr. Berry's "self respect" irritated, it is necessary to define the meaning of the term "Abolitionist"—a term, in our understanding of the word, of blackest reproach.
What, then, is to be an "Abolitionist"? In the first place, to be a traitor to the Constitution, which recognizes slavery. It is to be an advocate of the law enacted for the reclamation of fugitives from service. It is to be an instigator to servile rebellion—a stealer of negroes—a disturber of the peace—a promoter of bloodshed—a destroyer of the Union of the States. Abolitionism leads directly to all these calamities; and there is no escape from the issue. We think not—Still less can he be a gentleman.

And what are the habits and manners of the abolitionists? Read their journals; listen to their speeches; look at their speckled countenances, where Fred. Douglass, Abby Kelly, and Grace Greeley pour forth the foulest slanders on the brightest names of the nation; tracing alike the dead fathers of the Republic and the living defenders of the Constitution, in these libellers of Washington, Webster, and Clay—these revilers of the Government and consumers of law—worthy of the name of gentlemen? We doubt even if Mr. Berry, of Boston pianofortes, would be willing to class himself in such a category. If he still insists upon claiming the name of "Abolitionist," we can only say to him at parting, chaconne your taste. Such blackberries are not exactly your forte.
The following account of a shocking accident from the bursting of a fluid lamp is given in the Worcester (Mass.) Transcript. We re-publish it as a fresh warning against the use of this very dangerous article:
We copied a day or two since a paragraph, stating that the wife of D. Pearly Allen was burnt to death on Tuesday evening by the bursting of a fluid lamp. She was sitting on the lamp, when it burst, from some unexplained cause, communicating the fire to her person. There was no one in the house but an old man, who was too feeble to render any assistance. Mrs. Allen ran to a bed, in which she rolled herself to extinguish the fire from her person. She succeeded in doing so, but not until her clothes were entirely consumed from her waist downward, and her flesh burnt to a crisp. In the meantime the fluid had set the room on fire; yet, notwithstanding her terrible condition, she had the courage to think of extinguishing the fire, which, by this time, had communicated to various parts of the room. She ran to the well and drew pail after pail of water, which she dashed around the room until the fire was subdued, thus saving the house and the life of an aged and helpless man. She then ran into the street and made her condition known. She was so badly burnt that she lingered in excruciating torture but nine hours, when death terminated her sufferings.

LENOIR AND THE FEMALE COLLEGE.
It has been proposed, and is in contemplation, to found a liberal scale a Female School of high order, under the control and patronage of the Concord Presbytery. A little reflection will make it clear, beyond doubt, that such an institution will be at once and eminently successful. Suppose it, for instance, to be placed at Lenoir, the flourishing county seat of Caldwell, and it would be in the centre of a region of country large, fertile, intelligent enough, and wealthy enough for a respectable state, and which is yet, strange to say, in want of its wealth, intelligence, and respectability, without a good female school of high grade, and on a permanent basis. From Lenoir, it is 75 miles to Salisbury; 75 miles to Charlotte; 75 miles to Asheville; 80 miles to Jonesborough, Tennessee; 85 miles to Abingdon, Va.; and 90 miles to Salem, N. C., and about the same distance to Spartanburg, S. C. That a Female College, placed in the centre of this wide region would be successful, is apparent from many considerations. It is a region which annually sends a large number of female pupils to schools beyond its limits. Female schools that have approached it, and been located on its borders, are the most prosperous condition. The success of the well-known Moravian School at Salem; of the Edgecumbe Academy, at Greensborough; of the Methodist College, springing up almost within the shadow of Edgecumbe in the same village; of the Glen Spring High School in Spartanburg, and of the new Methodist College at Asheville, ought to be sufficient to convince the mind. The rapid progress of the male institutions which have commenced within the limits of the region, is also convincing proof that a female College in the same region would flourish. Witness the success of the Concord College, which, through struggling at first against poverty and untoward circumstances, is now rapidly extended, and in the full tide of prosperity. Witness the steady growth of the New Institute, in the same county, and of the Male Academy at Newton; and the success of the very excellent Classical School at the foot of the Rocky Valley of the Yadkin, in Caldwell County. These facts, together with the in-

I have spoken particularly of the village of Lenoir, because it seems to me to combine more advantages as a site for such an institution, than can be united at any other locality. Its central position has been already pointed out. Its vicinity to a fine section of East Tennessee, and Western Virginia, from which it is easily accessible over the Caldwell and Watauga Turnpike, now fast becoming a leading thoroughfare, is a consideration of first rate importance, and will secure it a valuable patronage from that quarter. The county of Caldwell is noted for its public spirit, its fine roads, surpassing those of any other Western county in the State, its general prosperity, and the intelligence and good morals of its population. The village of Lenoir is an agricultural section, where living is cheap; it is on a healthy location, surrounded by mountains. It has grown more rapid than any of the new villages, which have sprung up in the last ten or twelve years in the Western part of the State. And, while it is admitted, cheerfully, that its citizens may display less devotion to fashionable dress equipage and amusements than some of their gayer neighbors; on the other hand, it may be said, to their credit, that they are industrious, economical, moral in their deportment, and for the most part, professors of religion. The healthy, moral and religious tone which pervades the village and the county, are considerations which, in a matter of this kind, Presbyterians would be the last people to underrate. Finally, as some of their older neighbors, yet their public spirit is a guaranty that they will offer a liberal donation in behalf of the location at Lenoir; less, perhaps, absolutely than the subscriptions of Morganton or Statesville, but more, in proportion to their ability. The advantages, then, of the location at Lenoir, are its health, its cheapness, its accessibility over good roads, the centrality of its position, in a large region needing the school, the healthy and moral tone of its community, and the aid of its liberal donation.

Lenoir is not the only place where the school would flourish. A school for which there is so urgent a demand must prosper at any respectable location. The tier of counties at the base of the Blue Ridge, will all be found to combine advantages of the highest order as locations for the purpose of either male or female education; and it is only because the people of North Carolina are over-sighted, (if I may go beyond the pale of Webster for an expressive word,) that we have failed to avail ourselves long since of these advantages. JOHN C. BAKER & CO'S Compound Fluid Extract of Sarsaparilla.

THIS article is offered as a substitute for the many preparations put out under the same name, which are for the most part absolutely worthless, being entirely devoid of the active virtues of the root, and, by being prepared in an unskillful manner, and from inferior materials, are highly injurious, and seriously impair the health of the patient.
