

From the Charlotte Whig.

THE FOURTH AT CONCORD.

On yesterday morning, in company with many of our citizens, we took the northern cars on route to Concord, to be present at the celebration of the 4th at that place. Preparation had been making some time before, and we expected to have a pleasant day.

On the arrival of the cars at the depot the Calabrus Guards were in line prepared to receive the Charlotte company. After passing the usual salutes, the two companies took up their line of march for Concord.

After these ceremonies the military marched to the court-house, where a procession was formed under the direction of B. Barninger, Esq., Chief Marshal and his several assistants, in the following order, viz: The Military, the President and Organ of the Day, the Vice-President, the Readers of the Day, the Clergy, and Soldiers of the war of 1812, the Ladies, invited guests and Citizens generally, and were marched to the stand where very ample preparations were made for the accommodation of the persons present.

After the address was read, the President of the day, L. D. Coleman, announced that the exercises of the occasion would be commenced, when a fervent prayer was offered up to the throne of grace by the Rev. A. G. Stacy.

VOLUNTEER TOASTS.

By Col. D. Coleman: The History of North Carolina—Though no great amount of war has been fought in this State since the Revolution, yet it has been the theatre of a noble and heroic history, and it will be the pride of our citizens to see the names of our heroes and heroines recorded in the pages of our history.

THE GRAND BALLOON EXCURSION.

The first grand experimental air voyage to the seaboard took place from Washington Square this evening. Professor Wm. La Mountain and Gager made a successful ascent in their mammoth balloon, Atlantic, at forty minutes after 6 o'clock. The inflation was witnessed by thousands of citizens within the square, and outside the enclosure there was a dense throng.

mer occupant, Dr. Harvotz, having returned to Morganton, we saw the new Tannery of Mr. Jones Hox. He is also building, and preparing to enter into the business quite extensively. We are glad to see these preparations for the manufacture of leather, for they encourage the hope that the price of that indispensable article may be favorably affected by them.

Speaking of Leather.

Speaking of leather, reminds us of a conversation with a gentleman of Iredell county, on the 4th July. He is a Tanner, and told us that he had tanned "lots" of hides with pine bark, and sold the leather to shoe makers and harness makers in Salisbury; and that they could not tell it from oak tanned leather.

AN ORPHAN FROM MONTPELLIER.—A letter from Cassel, in the Salut-Public of Lyons, says: "I met in the Piazza Savone a French light infantry soldier with a sprig of laurel in his shoulder; the soldier, on being asked, 'who he was?' replied, 'I am an orphan from Montpellier. The day of the fight, on leaving the village, we chased the Austrians across the fields. But let's whistle among the trees like hail, and this poor bird, quite young, being terrified, fell from its nest on my arm. I thrust it into my shako, which had been pierced through by two balls, and thought no more of it until, on returning, I felt something scratch my head, and then I said, 'It is my little prisoner!' and to my surprise and great amusement of my comrades, I produced him. I have kept him since, and now we love each other dearly. Do we not, Montpellier? And so he spoke he held out his finger to the bird, which hopped on it without hesitation. I begged permission to buy Montpellier a few cherries, and to cross it. Cassel would not have kissed me tenderly the bird of Lyons than I did that sparrow."
