SALISBURY, N. C., AUGUST 14, 1860.

NUMBER 13.

Dedicated to Politics, News, Agriculture, Internal Improvements, Commerce, the Arts and Sciences, Morality, and the Family Circle.

BLANKS: The following Court and miscellaneous BLANKS are kept on hand for sale, at this office. Can be sent by mail to any part of the country, at usual expense.

OUR ENEMIES: The Yancey Breckinridge party and the black republicans, with Lincoln at their head, may justly be regarded as the common enemies of the Country.

THE PROGRAMME OF OUR ENEMIES: We copy the following from the Chicago Herald, a Black Republican paper, regarded as the organ of Mr. Lincoln.

A GREAT BELL RINGING: It is evident that the Republicans are not fond of the music of the Bells. The Cincinnati Commercial, a radical Republican organ, thus speaks of the recent Bell and Everett ratification meeting in this way:

THE STANDARD'S "CONDITION": Speaking of the "condition" upon which the Standard agreed to host the Flag of Breckinridge and Lane, a writer in Tuesday's Press says: "I look upon this last error of the Editor of the Standard, as bad as his first, and as an old Democrat, must say to him, that he must get the whole figure, 'Buck and Gubble,' or not at all."

The editor of mid paper is his Honor John Wentworth, Mayor of Chicago, a military called 'Long John' from his title, which is six feet six, or two inches more than that of the original rail splitter himself.

With the outlines of the Republican programme for the abolition of slavery thus presented by an editor fully possessing the confidence of Mr. Lincoln, it is any wonder that the alternative of secession and a Southern Confederacy should be agitated in the South?

In addition to this, here is a quotation from one of Mr. Lincoln's speeches, which the Chicago organ has posted every day at the head of its columns: "THE TARIFF ISSUE—I believe this Government cannot endure permanently half slave and half free."

THE UNION PARTY: After the resolutions were adopted, a terrible noise, worse than forty Beldams loose, announced the approach of the Kentucky delegation. They came, an army with bells, all sorts of bells, big bells, and little bells, hammer bells and bell bells, dinner bells, and cow bells, bells miscellaneous, sheep bells and supper bells, auctioneers bells, and bells for fire engines, (to ring in the trunks); plantation bells and church bells, allegic bells and breakfast bells, together with all sorts, signs, and kinds of bells.

The Skies are Brightening: Since the publication of the last number of the "Gleaner," the National Executive Committee has received a large number of letters from every section of the Union; all, with remarkable unanimity, coinciding in the report that the skies are daily growing brighter and more auspicious for the glorious cause of the Union and the Constitution.

At the conclusion of his remarks the Committee on Resolutions made their report. Resolved, That we heartily ratify the nomination of John Lane, of Tennessee, for President, and Edward Everett, of Massachusetts, for Vice-President, as distinguished patriots, able and experienced statesmen, and life-long supporters of the Union, the Constitution and the Law.

At the conclusion of the reading of the resolutions, which were unanimously adopted, Hon. HENRY M. FLETCHER, of Pennsylvania, introduced to the Convention, who proceeded to address those present in an eloquent speech. At the conclusion of Mr. F's address, Hon. James Binion was introduced to make some remarks.

It will be observed that the three Bell men on the above ticket are also on the Union Ticket, having been first nominated by the Union Convention. The A. T. Express thus alludes to the action of the Union Convention: "The Trenton, New Jersey, Union Convention appointed a Bell and Everett Electoral Ticket, and a State Executive Committee of twenty-five were appointed to make it a Union Electoral Ticket upon the principles of the New York Union Committee, and to fill any vacancies which may occur by resignations or otherwise."

New Jersey State Conventions: The Union State Convention of New Jersey met at Trenton on the 25th of July. A large number of delegates were in attendance, outnumbering in fact the delegates to the Douglas and Breckinridge Conventions, both of which were in session at Trenton on that day.

Resolved, That we are in favor of the Union as it is, and opposed to the efforts of all secessionists and others to weaken, undermine, or destroy it. Resolved, That we earnestly support the Constitution, with all its provisions and compromises, as intended, and well calculated to protect and support our national industry, property, and independence.

The Douglas Convention assembled at the same place, refused to form a union with the Breckinridge men, and after nominating an Electoral Ticket adjourned sine die. The Breckinridge Convention being in dignant at the refusal of the Douglas men to unite with them, nominated an Electoral Ticket, composed of four Democrats and three Bell and Everett. As follows: AT LARGE.—Edward A. Stevens and Peter B. Vernon.

On Wednesday last a Union Club was organized in the city of Alexandria, Va., and George D. Wain, Esq., nephew of Gov. Wain and a Democrat, was elected President.—Southern Monitor. The Mobile Register says that in Alabama the Breckinridge and Lane men are a party of officers without soldiers.

From the Raleigh Register: HAULING DOWN THE SECTIONAL FLAG: The Nashville Banner mentions the receipt of the Hayneville (Ala.) Watchman, with the national flag flying at its head, inscribed with the noble names of Bell and Everett.

We take the following from the Standard of Wednesday last: From the Raleigh Standard: Mr. ESTES: How is it to be expected that harmony and union can be maintained in the ranks of the Democratic Party in North Carolina when some of the party are indulging in the most scurrilous abuse and wanton misrepresentation of the motives of Judge Douglas and his friends?

The Douglas men may expect this treatment throughout this Campaign.—The situation of these men in North Carolina is peculiarly unhappy. Since the inglorious surrender of the Standard, they have no central organ, and as far as we know but one paper in the State to espouse their cause and defend them from the assaults of the Breckinridge men.—That paper is the Northern Progress, which though firm, fearless, and outspoken, cannot, owing to its position, exercise more than a local influence. But this is none of our business.

On Saturday we went to Beaufort and returned on Monday evening. The crowd at Beaufort is large. They all seem to fare well and seem to enjoy themselves. There is fishing, sailing, excursions, eating, drinking, dancing and sleeping going on all the time. The landlords seem anxious to please and the guests seem charitably disposed, and determined to be satisfied with what they can get.

From the Raleigh Register: HOW THE DOUGLAS MEN ARE TREATED: We take the following from the Standard of Wednesday last: From the Raleigh Standard: Mr. ESTES: How is it to be expected that harmony and union can be maintained in the ranks of the Democratic Party in North Carolina when some of the party are indulging in the most scurrilous abuse and wanton misrepresentation of the motives of Judge Douglas and his friends?

On the occasion of the first Emperor Napoleon's visit to the staff of the Marshals of France to take dinner with him at two o'clock. The Marshals were a few minutes late. The Emperor, at the moment the clock struck, sat down to the table alone. He was a quick eater, seldom appearing at the table more than ten minutes. At the end of this time his staff appeared, when he rose to meet them, and said, Messrs. it is now past dinner, and we will immediately proceed to business; whereupon the Marshals were obliged to spend the entire afternoon in planning a new campaign on an empty stomach!

His Royal Highness has shown himself to be a Prince of discretion. He is decidedly averse to being bored during the Canadian tour, with long speeches, no the suggestions has been made at his request that all the speeches which would have been delivered, before he has received his great and wise Prince that to defeat the Canadian Bootes, and their associate session seekers. We undertake to say that the distinguished guest will have no more unwelcome task than that of reading the speeches of welcome. What a pity it is that some of our prominent political stars cannot exercise the same prudence, and request their friends at the different towns which they visit, to reduce their extraneous speeches to writing.

A BAD HARRY.—The practice of wearing tight finger rings is exceedingly dangerous. But a short time since we read an account of a man having died of lock jaw, produced by wearing a tight finger ring. An exchange notices a woman in Newark who wore a large iron ring so tight that it became impossible to remove it. An examination showed the finger to be quite dead below the ring and that decomposition had commenced. The ring was about a quarter of an inch wide by an eighth in thickness. She went to a physician to have it removed, but without avail, and the physician was compelled to resort to amputation as the only means of preventing a fatal result. The finger was accordingly taken off at the base. It is believed that the woman wore the ring through superstitious motives, as she manifested more uneasiness at parting with the ring than with the finger.

From Pitt's Post—Famous Shooting: St. Johns, Aug. 1.—The Pitt's Post Express, from Dover city, with date to the 23d inst., arrived here last evening. A man named Smith, of Arkansas, while pursuing a man named Curtis (who had eloped with his wife) through the streets shot at him. Curtis escaped injury, but Smith's wife was wounded. Curtis then returned the fire, killing him instantly. The shooting affray between Pat Durlin and Joseph Lafferty resulted in the death of the former. The People's Court returned a verdict of justifiable homicide. Mr. Hadley, an auctioneer, was accidentally shot dead by a bar-keeper a few days ago. The latter was arrested. James Gordon, formerly of Boston, while on a spree last week, shot a bar-keeper, badly wounding him. After two or three attempts to shoot other persons, later in the night, he attacked a young German in a public saloon, and blew his brains out. Gordon was pursued by the citizens of Denver the next day, and was discovered with a party of his friends in Fort Union, but he made his escape, after having been wounded and his horse shot. Two prominent citizens were arrested on the charge of assisting him to escape. One of the party in pursuit of Gordon came upon another party of his friends, and while the latter were endeavoring to escape, one of them named Frank Milligan, was drowned. Another of the party was taken prisoner, with arms and three mules in his possession. A Vigilance Committee has been organized to ferret out and punish the murderers and thieves, now overrunning the country. The mining news is unimportant. The weather has been warm and showery.
