Fire.—We regret to state, that the Plough Foundry of Messrs. Puryear and Morse, of this vicinity, was destroyed by fire on Wednesday evening last, together with the patterns, fixtures, &c.

Love to the Last.—At the recent explosion of a steam vessel, a witness related the melancholy fate of two fond lovers who were sitting together when the accident happened: they were blown high into the air, when the gentleman threw his arm around the fair one's neck and snatched one hasty kiss. Within twenty seconds both their bodies descended into the river in a shower of atoms.—ib.

An Invention.—The New York Transcript says:—"That enterprising and successful young aeronaut, Mr. Mills, is in this city, and, we are happy to say, purposes, ere long, to make an ascension with his newly-invented conical balloon. We yesterday inspected the successful results of a numerous series of experiments relative to the manufacture of balloons with wings or sails, so as to make them capable of being navigated through the fields of air; and we speak advisedly when we say, that Mr. Mills' achievements in this respect are truly astonishing, and we doubt not that he will soon be able to exhibit to the wonder-loving folks of this good city of Gotham the Eureka of modern philosophy—a balloon directed in the air at the will of the aeronaut."

Pennsylvania.—The total bank capital in this state, is $17,779,362, the amount of notes discounted $26,749,619, and the specie capital $3,424,601. This is exclusive of the U. States Bank.

Missouri is the only state in the Union which has not a bank incorporated by her Legislature.

The Empire State.—The amount of real and personal estate in the State of New York on which taxes are levied for 1834, ascertained by assessments, is four hundred and fifty-three million three thousand two hundred and one dollars.

In five years this state will have nearly three millions of inhabitants; one million of men capable of bearing arms; immense arsenals and armaments; an annual clear income from canals and other sources of three million of dollars, and fifty votes in Congress.

N. Y. Star.

We copy with pleasure from the London and Edinburgh Philosophical Magazine and Journal of Science, for December, 1834, conducted by that eminent philosopher, Sir David Brewster, the following extract; and we are further happy to state, for the information of his friends, that Mr. Featherstonhaugh, is returned in good health from a tour in the Territory of Arkansas, and is expected to report his results in a few days:

"We announce, with great satisfaction, a most important act of legislation by the Congress of U. States, the authorization of a geological survey of that fine country, so rich in minerals and geological phenomena. It gives us pleasure also, to add that President Jackson has committed the execution of this arduous undertaking to Mr. Featherstonhaugh, one of the members of the Geological Society of London, who has acquired deserved reputation as a practical and ardent geologist. This gentleman has been many years a resident of the United States, and it is of him, that Mr. Coneybeare, in his celebrated report says—'Mr. F. a geologist eminently qualified, with his intimate acquaintance with European formations, to advance those comparative views which demand the principal attention in our science.'

"We cannot but look with unqualified admiration upon the steadiness with which all the great interests of the United States are pursued. The States have wisely concurred in a great act of legislation that cannot but redound to the best interests of their country, and the substantial advancement of natural science. It is an act which Europe will admire, and we hope imitate, and that will ever reflect great honor upon the Administration of the present distinguished Chief Magistrate of the United States."—Globe.

From the Stamford Sentinel.

Lost Children found.—Some of our readers will remember the account published in the Sentinel, some two or three years ago, of the loss of three children in Upper Canada—one the grand-child of Augustus Bates, Esq. formerly of Darien. We have just received a letter from Mr. Bates, giving us the pleasing intelligence that after an absence of three years, one of the little wanderers, now ten years old, has found his way back to his parents, and told where the other two are yet alive and in good health. Our correspondent gives a brief account of the lad's adventures, as related by himself.

Soon after the children had lost their way, they were seized by a party of Indians and conveyed a distance in the wilderness to their camp. The Indians kept them so close, that not finding them after many weeks of diligent search, their parents supposed they must have perished with hunger, or become a prey to the wild beasts. The lad states that some time last summer, a party of Indians took him from the camp, then on the shore of Lake Huron, to go with them on a hunting excursion. Having gone into the woods a long distance, they built up a fire and left him in charge, with a dog for a companion. How long he had remained at the fire is not stated, but becoming hungry, and the Indians not returning, he undertook to find his way back to the camp. Not finding his way, he wandered two days and nights in the wilderness. On the third day, almost exhausted, he threw himself down by the side of a log. The barking of the dog, which had continued his close companionship, and guarded him against the attack of wild beasts—soon attracted some friendly Indians to the spot, who took him up, gave him food, and in a few days took him to his native settlement, and restored him very unexpectedly to all parties,—to his overjoyed parents. He states that he left the other two children alive and well at the camp on the shores of the Huron. A party of gentlemen immediately set out in pursuit of them, and we doubt not but ere this, they have been found and restored to their parents.

Beauties of Litigation.—The editor of the Augusta (Geo.) Sentinel, in an article on the abuses and defects of the civil law generally and of that of Georgia in particular, gives the following illustration of the results of that system which, (saith Sir William Blackstone or some body else) is 'the perfection of human reason':

A man sued another for the value of his labor bestowed upon a house which he had built for the defendant. He sued in the Inferior Court, where he obtained a verdict. The defendant appealed, and, after the usual delays, his case came on for trial. Before unfolding his proofs, it appeared that there was another person (we will call him A.) who had some interest in the contract; and a motion was made for a nonsuit, on the ground that A. should have joined in the action. The motion was sustained, and the plaintiff was nonsuited.

He now re-commenced his suit, joining A. with him in the action. He commenced as before in the Inferior Court, where he succeeded. Defendant appealed; and in the mean time a new judge was elected for that circuit. The case came on for trial; and, upon the hearing, a motion was made for a nonsuit, upon the ground of the improper joinder of A. in the action. The judge now on the bench happened to be the very man at whose instance the first nonsuit was obtained; the plaintiff, therefore, felt himself very secure from this motion. But he was mistaken. The judge stated that he was well acquainted with the circumstances of the case, and deeply regretted that he could not agree with his predecessor—that he had examined the authorities with care, and the examination had resulted in a settled conviction that A. ought not to have been joined in the action; and under this conviction there was no other alternative but to nonsuit the plaintiff—which was done accordingly.

The plaintiff now commenced his action as he did at first. Before it reached the final trial the second judge was deposed, and the third was placed over the circuit. We left that circuit before the case came before this judge, but we understand that he nonsuited the plaintiff a third time, on the ground that A. ought to have been joined in the action; and that, before the plaintiff could accommodate himself to the views of this judge, his case was barred by the statute of limitations. If so, the defendant got his house built for nothing; and the plaintiff, in addition to the expenses of the house, was saddled with the cost of three suits and six trials.

The witty editor of the "Miami of the Lake," Perrysburg, Ohio, thus discourses:

They seem to be making considerable fun of the somewhat oute name of our paper. One of our neighbors sends us his paper, directed to the 'Lake of the Woods,' another to the 'Mammy of the Lake,' a third to the 'Mammy to the Maunee,' and a fourth punning most savagely on us, sends his papers to the 'Miasma of the Lakes.'

The same editor alluding to a pugnacious cotemporary, 'the New Lisbon Patriot and Shield,' says of him:

"He is a whole hog Jackson man, that is, he possesses all the wisdom as well as all the pertinacity of that very sapient animal. His principles also resemble those of the corn-eating quadruped, who will not be led by the neck, because the horse, silly thing, is led in that manner; but leads admirably by a cord attached to his hind leg, because then he cannot see his bonds, and can maintain the independence of nose in which he delights."

Providence, R. I. made his fortune in Charleston, S. C. and died without issue.

NEW Coach & Gig Manufactory

THE Subscriber respectfully informs his friends and the public in general, that he has commenced business for himself on his lot in Tarborough, near the Bridge, where he will be prepared to carry on the above business in all its various branches. He served a regular apprenticeship under Mr. Thos. Cobbs, of Raleigh, who carried on the business very extensively, and kept in his employ regular northern workmen. In several years acquaintance with the business in one of the most extensive establishments in the State could ensure his success, he feels confident he should meet it; but he is perfectly aware that attention is equally necessary, and this attention he is determined to render. He hopes, therefore, that all persons who may favor him with their patronage, will never become dissatisfied or disappointed. His work shall be faithfully executed and of the best materials. He expects to have in a short time a general assortment of materials from New York, which will enable him to do his work not inferior to any done in this section of country. Repairing done with neatness and despatch.
