

Miscellaneous.

From the Little Rock (Arkansas) Advocate.
From Prose Sketches and Poems, by Albert Pike.
 Oh who with the sons of the plain can complete,
 When from west, south and north like the torrents they meet?
 And when doth the face of the white trader blanch,
 Except when at sunrise he hears the Cumanch?
 Will you speak in our lodge of a bold Calawah?
 He is brave, but it is when our braves are afar.
 Will you talk of the gun of the Arapaho?
 Go—first see the arrow spring off from our bow.
 The white wolf goes with us, wherever we ride,
 For food can he find then on every side—
 And Mexican bones he has plenty to cranch,
 When he follows the band of the flying Cumanch.
 The Toyah exults in his spear and his shield,
 And the Wequah, but both have we taught how to yield:
 And the Panama horses our women now ride,
 While their scalps in our lodges are hung side by side.
 Let the Wawsashy boast—he will run like a deer,
 When afar on the prairie our women appear—
 The shaven scalps hang—in each lodge three or four—
 We will count them again, when ere long we take mere.
 The Gromonts came down—'tis three summers ago—
 To look for our scalps and to hunt buffalo—
 But they turned to the mountains their faces again,
 And the trace of their lodges has gone in the rain.
 The Spirit above never sends us his curse—
 And the buffalo never gets angry with us—
 We are strong as the storm—we are free as the breeze,
 And we laugh at the power of the pale Ikanese.*
 Let them come with the pipe—we will tread it to dust;
 And the arrow of war shall ne'er moulder with rust—
 Let them come with their hosts—to the deserts we'll flee:
 And the drouth and the famine our helpers shall be.
 The mountain Shoshons have hearts big and strong,
 Our brothers they are, and they speak the same tongue,
 And let them in battle but stand by our side,
 And we scorn Ikanese and black Spaniard allied.
 Oo-oo-ha! come out from the Brazos cannon!
 Let us range to the head of the salt Semaron—
 For our horses are strong, and there's hair to be won,
 When the Ikanese wagons their track are upon.

From the New York Mirror.
 I have just time before the packet sails to send you an anecdote that is bought out of the London papers: A nobleman, living near Belgrave Square, received a visit a day or two from a police officer, who stated to him, that he had a man servant in his house who had escaped from Botany Bay. His lordship was somewhat surprised, but called up the male part of his household, at the officer's request, and passed them in review. The culprit was not among them. The officer then requested to see the female part of the establishment; and, to the inexpressible astonishment of the whole household, he laid his hand upon the shoulder of the lady's confidential maid, and informed her she was his prisoner. A change of dress was immediately sent for, and miladi's dressing maid was re-metamorphosed into an effeminate looking fellow, and marched off to a new trial. It is a most extraordinary thing that he had lived unsuspected in the family for nine months, performing all the functions of a confidential Abigail, and very much in favor with his unsuspecting mistress, who is rather a serious person, and would as soon have thought of turning out to be a man herself. It is said that the husband once made a remark upon the fuskiness of the maid's voice, but no other comment was ever made reflecting in the least upon her qualities as a member of the beau sex. The story is quite authentic, but hushed up out of regard to the lady. N. P. W.

Mourning.—In Europe, black is generally used because it represents darkness, unto which death is like, as it is a privation of life. In China, white is used, because they hope the dead are in heaven, the place of purity. In Egypt, yellow is used, because it represents the decaying of trees and flowers which yellow as they die away. In Ethiopia, brown is used because it denotes the color of the earth from whence we came, and to which we return. In some parts of Turkey blue is used because it represents the sky, where they hope the dead are gone; but in other parts purple and violet, because being a mixture of black and blue, it represents, as it were, sorrow on one side, and hope on the other.

A starch merchant lately died in England, leaving a fortune of a million to each of his six children. The secret of his gains consisted in feeding some three or 4000 hogs yearly, upon the refuse of his manufactory, which is generally thrown away for its offensiveness, but which consists chiefly of the gluten or most nutritious portion of vegetable matter.

A Mother's three Holidays.—The interesting Cora in the tragedy of Pizarro, thus describes the three holidays, "allowed by Nature's sanction, to a fond mother's heart:"

"When first the white blossoms of his teeth appear, breaking through the crimson buds that did encase them, that is a day of joy. Next, when from his father's arms he runs without support, and clings laughing and delighted to his mother's knees, that—that is the mother's heart's next holiday; and sweeter still the third, whenever his little stammering tongue, shall utter the grateful sound of Father, Mother, O, that is the dearest joy of all."

Here, Sam, stand behind my back, said a hump-backed fellow. Oh, yes, sir. And Sam goes behind him. Why, Sam, when you are behind me, you are before my back! Sam, thus nonplussed, goes round in front of the fellow. Why, Sam, that's before me, not behind my back! Why, dang it, sir, you're all back; and as for knowin this side from that, I'll be darned to darnation if I can tell tother from which!

Oxford Examiner.
 THE Subscriber invites propositions to succeed him as printer and proprietor of the "Oxford Examiner," to take effect not sooner than the 1st of next October. A practical Printer could invest a small sum to considerable advantage in this Establishment. Any gentleman possessing a few hours leisure each day might devote them with the certainty of profit to the conducting of a paper in this place. The income has enabled the present Editor to live comfortably far more than five years, although he commenced and has all along labored under embarrassing disadvantages. But little exertion would ensure a more extended patronage. Should an application be made which would likely prove agreeable to the public, a bargain may be had. The establishment is deemed a permanent one, as the people have manifested a determination to sustain a Press in their county Town.
