Circumstances prevented me from answering your communication by the return mail as requested. That was, however, not of material consequence, I presume I could not have attended, even though I had received, at an early period, your letter, designating the day of the dinner. In unaffected attachment to the constitutional rights of the great mass, in pure and lofty patriotism, and as a profound statesman he stands unrivalled. Upon him rest the hopes of the South.

It is useless for me to extol Mr. Calhoun, it has been done often by more gifted minds, in a far more satisfactory manner than I could hope to do it; but if all the complimentary epithets contained in being more a butchery than a battle. Igthe English language were exhausted upon norant of the laws of civilized warfare, the him, the measure of praise would not be would prefer Mr. Calhoun as the candidate for the Presidency before any other of the aspirants, because, I believe him honest, capable, and faithful, and he is a Southern man.

I fear, from the indications in some quarters, that we may have a schism in our party; this by all means ought to be avoided, our divisious will assuredly bring de feat to our cause, and victory to our opponents. Though I declare my preference for Mr. Caihoun, yet, should he not be the regular nomince of the party, I would surrender my choice; for I hold, that the success of our cherished principles is of paramount importance to the elevation of any particular individual. Our political enemies are looking anxiously for, and already predicting our divisions, they will foment them; let us resolve that, as they sow dissension, they shall reap mortification, and disappointment.

The approaching session of our Legislature will be important and interesting, the Senatorial and Congressional districts are to be altered, and a Senator to Congress to be elected. Who will be elected Senator? Brown, Saunders, Henry, and others, have been spoken of. I would prefer Heary for several reasons. He has capacity to discharge the duties with credit to himself, and his State, and he is orthodox in polities; and besides, at the call of the Democracy of his State, he entered the late gubernatorial contest to sustain their principles, when all the chances of success were unfavorable; he made sacrifices of interest, and most painful illness, Mrs. M. D. A. and health, and was defeated. Now that E. Singletary, consort of the Rev. John the Democrats have the ascendancy, and Singletary, and daughter of the late Dr. the power of dispensing honors, it seems Robert Williams, of Pitt. The loss of this Joseph B. Stanly out regard to capacity, should entitle a man to office; but I do maintain as a correct rule of action, that when a party gets imo power, it ought to appoint to office those only, who are capable, and who advocate the principles of the party. "Arrangements were made for an attack in three columns, two of which were gallantly led by Sir H. Gough and Sir W Parker, in person. Nothing could exceed the bravery of the troops. They contrived to surround the Chinese, and quite bewildered them. The carnage was dreadful, ber of Mandarins, were killed, or drowned in the canals; whereas of the British troops only three were killed and twenty-two wounded. The encampments, and such of the buildings as had been occupied by the enemy, were burned, and the grain magazines thrown open to the populace, who speedily emptied them."

According to this, the English forces were gallantly led on to one of the most horrible butcheries on record!
