Seventy-five acres of the above land is cleared, the soil rich and well adapted for raising corn, cotton, peas and tobacco. There are two good log cabins and one crib upon the premises. The remaining portion, 675 acres, is heavily timbered with yellow pine, oak, ask, etc. There are rich marl deposits on the land, which furnishes all the fertilizer necessary.

EDITOR SOUTHERNES of Having been confined to my roun for a week or so by a slight indisposition, and rusmaging around for something to rad, I can up with my old Outslogue of Confederate Prisoners of War on Johnson's Island, for the years 1863, '64, '65, and finding therein (the catalogue) as I that therein (the catalogue), as I think choice extracts of prison poetry, I have concluded, with your permission, to risk the revival it some old reminiscences, reveries and r. collections, and adorn your poet's corner, once a week, until I get partially through, or until some old Reb. hints "Hold! cnough."

Another apology I offer for this infliction now is the dull in politice. and the necessity for diverting our minds from the troubles incident to the low price of cotton, as in those days the writer had to resort to hard school-boy study to keep hs mind off the national troubles, coupled with the particular and per sonal troubles of a troubled stomach, for, be it remembered, that when we were confined there in 1863, there were large quantities of large rats-perhaps, hundreds of thousands -that rapidly and entirely disar peared when our rations were di tressingly shortened, and tastly, there being no further need of his services, the fatherly Tom cat was butchered, cooked and devoured in Block 10. In this last feas: the writer did not participate. But, before commencing the poetry, I will state for the benefit of the young and uninitiated that the Island had an area of about fifty acres, lying out in Lake Erie, north of the State of Ohio, three or four miles from the main and and a cold. bleak place in winter. The Prison Pen was an enclosure on the Island of ten or twelve acres, surrounded by a plank fence, twelve or fifteen feet high, with an elevated platform at the top, running entire around it, on which the sentinels walked and overlooked the "Pen," and at night, from tottoo to reveille, they would break the silence by calling out loudly every half hour the time, with the words, "And all's well!" Cedar Point Lighthouse was situsted on a tongue of the mainland, five or six miles Southeast of the Island, the light of which was so plainly visible in the direction we loved to look that it spanned the water with a bridge of silver, over which we often, in fancy wandered to our own dear Southland. It was these surroundings that suggested to Capt. R. Wright, of Texas, a graphic sketch of Cedar Point by Suggested by a sketch of Cedar Point by moonlight from Johnson's Island, and respectfully inscribed to the artist, Capt. R. Wright, of Texas, by Lt. Howard C. Wright, 30th Louisians.

Silence deep, profound, mysterious, Gains her sway, with subtle power, O'er the mind. She holds imperious Court within the solemn hour, While the sable sky is teeming With her starry courtiers' gleaming And the vestal moon is beaming There as well. Silence over Erie's waters, Resting in the ambient air :

Silence over prison quarters, Melancholy silence there, Hark, the spell at last is broken Shrill the cry, by sentry spoken-What may not those words betoken-"All is well!"

"Half-past ten o'clock" is calling;
"All is well!" Ah, whence that sigh?
"Twas like grief in cadence falling Like a weary zephyr dying, Where October's leaves are lying, Yet the sentry is replying, "All is well!" From you light-house comes a glistening, Like a ray of hope it seems; Eager hearts to false hope listening

Hope that only comes in dreams.
Oh, that hope of home returning!
Hoping on and with a burning,
Feverish fire of ceaseless yearning—
"All is well!" See, a bridge of silver glossing Spans the bay from shore to shore! Eager Fancy, o'er it crossing, Seeks to wander ever more; Seeks to stroll midst childhood's flowers,

Midst affections changeless bowers, Or with love in moonlight hours; But the Present, still intruding, With its harsh, repulsive truth, Comes unbidden here, excluding Sweetest dreams of bouyant yout For the sweetest dreams are fleeting; Fancy's self is ever cheating; Still the sentry is repeating,

"All is well!"

"All is well!" The prisoner, sleeping
In his bunk so rude and bare,
Sees an aged mother weeping,
Hears a young wife's whispered prayer.
"All is well!" while Hope, forsaking,
Leaves behind it only aching;
"All is well!" while hearts are breaking—
All is well!" All is well." "All is well!" A spirit, tiring Of its chains, will soon be free; Yes, a captive, now expiring, Soon shall find his liberty.

"All is well!" A soul is fleeting Angels hover round with greeting.
And the sentry is repeating,
"All is well!" SENATOR JONES INTERVIEW-

That strikes me as a first-class suggestion. In my judgment he could carry the majority of the electoral votes more readily than any other person I sould name. Everybody who wants Gen: Grant would vote for him, and those who do not want Grant would find Fish a happy alternative. I should see him nominated in the confidence that he could carry the country. There is some idea, besides, that New York had better present the candidate. That is why I mentioned Conkling's

THE SOLID SOUTH? 'I think the general feeling throughout the North, and extending as far as the Pacific coast, is indifference about the South, Our people seem to have made up their minds that the South has always been overestimated and does not contain sincers elements of patriotism or good behavior. I do not know that there is any bitterness toward them. The feeling is rather disgust as toward some worthless kinsmen.

Have you been through the South recently ? 'Yes, I have been down during the past year. I have some interests in Atlanta, Ga., and I went there and to New Orleans, and as far as Texas. The only portion of the South that struck me with much promise was Northern Texas, where it is inhabited by our own Northwestern people. They will make a new Kansas of it, with the institutions and feelings of a good civilization.
As for the rest, I think very little of it. I don't think I would live in the State of South Carolina if they were to give me the entire Com-monwealth for a barony. It is impossible to get a good meal of vic-tuals in the South. They have not learned the first rudiments of cooking. Wherever you go you find your meats fried in boar's fat. There is one spot, ot least, where I am delicate, and that is, my stomach.
They have plenty of good game in the South, but have no conception of how to prepare it. They gave us in Texas fine prairie chicken, which had the promise of making a delicious meal, but suddenly it would be returned, all baked in sow's fat. 'For God's sake,' I said to the cook have a little butter put on it and
