A Chinese Printing Office.

In a San Francisco Chinese printing office the the manner of putting a newspaper on the press and printing is very primitive. The editor takes American newspapers to friends, from whom he gets a translation of the matter he needs, and after getting it ets and shoulders raised, sheltering written in Chinese in a manner satisthemselves from the cold blast which factory to him he carefully writes it sweeps so keenly over the river. The deeply recessed seats are crowded upon paper chemically prepared. Upon with wretched occupants, thronging

He does jobs" of work at the docks, coal not depend on his brain for editorials, but translates them from all the conwharves, markets, etc. Another reason advanced is the objection to the temporaneous American newspapers dancing community. It seems that one day recently to see a devil fish of social amusement need consultation and intellectual discussion, and we judge from the limited reports that appear that the industry needs stimulating in council. Our people do un dance so well or so of they did fifty years ago.

The terpischorean dalliance has settled into formal and occasional sets in the back parlor and the annual hop. Doubtless it is the decadence of dancing that has brought the masters of the art together. They are devising means to make the American people trip the light fantastic with something of the old time fever and persistency. We hope they may succeed. Our forefathers and foremothers went out and tripped it merrily on the green and joined hands in a gallopade under May-poles and "melancholy boughs." Why should we not imitate them? We trust the dancing a word of sympathy, Tell neither of masters will frown upon the introduction of the Can-can into the back parlor and stimulate a fresh desire in the breasts of our sedate young ladies to kick up their hells in a good old-fashioned jig. Baptized.
