"The Elephant Boy"

A page from Kipling's "Jungle Book", the best example of elephant photography ever produced. Robert Flaherty, who produced "Nanook of the North" and "Moana," spent a year in India making this picture of the remarkable comradeship between the biggest elephant in India and a little boy whose ancestors for thousands of years have been mahouts.

A stirring drama from life in the tropical jungle; twelve hundred natives in a tremendous elephant hunt.

Matinee 3:30 p. m. Evening, 8 o'clock. Proceeds to the Young Men's Association.

Afternoon Prices: 15 and 50c
