WANTED: A few directions. About a month ago we had an enthusiastic Civilian Defense meeting, where we were told to save all waste paper, metal cans, rags, bones, rubber, wire, milk bottle tops, boxes (paste board)—in short about all that goes to the usual waste places. These things, to be used in some fashion for National Defense, were to be collected, kept clean, and stored until further notice. No notice has been forthcoming, and our storage space is limited. Many of us would be glad to know what plan—if any—is being worked out for taking care of the valuable hoard.
