THE TRYON DAILY BULLETIN

The World's Smallest Daily Newspaper.

Seth M. Vining, Editor

Vol. 24—No. 345 TRYON, N. C., WEDNESDAY, JAN. 16TH, 1952

Weather Tuesday: High 76, low 54, Rel. Hum. 58. That looks like pretty good weather for January when you read about a blizzard marooning a modern streamlined passenger train for days in Northern California where 24 degree temperature and 15 to 20 feet of snow has brought much suffering.

The Tryon Liquor store sold $40,891.10 worth of whiskey during December which was about three weeks of business as the store did not open the first few days and no publicity was given to the opening. Asheville sold over half a million and Charlotte over a million and a quarter and the state as a whole sold more than eight million dollars worth . . . Here from Oklahoma: A treat for many Tryon people Tuesday was the sight of 104 head of whiteface Hereford beef cattle and one cow pony, being unloaded at the Tryon depot for the R. A. Ferguson Jr., cattle farm near Mill Spring. They were shipped by freight from Oklahoma. Mr. Ferguson, son of R. A. Ferguson, vice president of Kay-nee, largest manufacturer of boys' shirts, suits, etc., Cleveland, Ohio, bought from Ray Walker the W. C. Hill farm, formerly owned by the late J. T. Waldrop. The number of fine cattle farms in Polk County

GRIFFITH AT KIWANIS

Harold C. Griffith, chairman of the Kiwanis Achievement Committee spoke to the club on Tuesday at Oak Hall hotel. The speaker reviewed the work of various committees and the duties of the chairmen and members of the committees suggesting various activities that were done in other clubs. Mr. Griffith stressed the importance of attendance and the roll each member must have in order to have a successful club. The speaker praised the first issue of the Tryon Kiwanian and stated that it was one of the best that he had ever seen, and hoped that Editor Elbert H. Arledge and his staff of past presidents would continue their good work.

Dana Harris, past president of the Shelby Kiwanis Club, and Harold Warrington of Tryon were guests. Mr. Harris has four years perfect attendance and enjoys visiting Kiwanis clubs.
