ALL ABOUT DOWSING ROD

A recent ad in The Bulletin for one familiar with the use of the dowsing rod sent many Bulletin readers to the dictionary and created quite a bit of discussion. The Lanier Library has received a copy of Kenneth Robert's "Henry Gross and His Dowsing Rod" from a resident of the county who has been converted to the mysteries of dowsing and firmly believes in it as a force inevitably successful in the hands of an honest and experienced practitioner.

The book given the library records the exploits of one phenomenal dowser and gives photographs of wells bringing in water at spots where experts said there was none.

Breaks Bone Fish Record

Mrs. Herbert D. Oliver broke the "Ladies World Record for Bone Fish, when she 'boated' a 7½ pound bone fish on a 5½ pound test line."

Affidavits on American Museum of Natural History (New York) forms have been sent with official weigh and measurements and sample of line attested to by H. B. Majesty's Comm., on Bimini, B. I., to the American Museum of Natural History. Bone fish is now being mounted by Pfluger, Miami.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver spent a week in early January at Bimini and Cat Coy, Bahama Islands, bone fishing, from skiffs, with native guides, and deep sea fishing from Yacht "Alberta" commanded by Capt. John Cass.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Costa at New Smyrna Beach, Fla., write they'll be glad to get back to the beautiful mountains.
