No official weather report for Wednesday, but it felt like fall. Thursday morning there was a big frost in the area. Maybe that will slow down the kudzu growth until next spring.

Despite the disapproval of his church, a black Roman Catholic priest says he will adopt a black child to dramatize a growing need for their placement in adoptive or foster homes. The Rev. George Clements, 48, who has 4,000 parishioners in his predominantly black congregation at Holy Angels Church on the South Side, Chicago, said through a spokesman that he formally will announce his plans to become an adoptive father at a public meeting in his church.

An Italian frogman was quoted Wednesday as saying he has spotted four heavy iron cases in Lake Garda near Milan which might contain dictator Benito Mussolini's treasury of gold ingots.

Motorists in the Carolinas will pay about 25 cents a gallon more for gasoline this Thanksgiving than they did a year ago.

Each year the Tryon Firemen sponsor a Christmas Parade and at the end of the parade Santa

Betty Frost Gets Second Wind Award

Betty and Norme Frost

Betty Frost was named this year's Second Wind Hall of Fame winner on Thursday night at a meeting of Tryon Little Theater participants in the last play, "The Inspector Calls," which she directed. TLT sponsored Mrs. Frost's award, according to Jack Kendall, President of the organization.

Getting your second wind might imply that you once had a first wind and somehow lost it. Not Tryon Second-Winders. And most assuredly not Betty Frost. She has sailed through life repeating the ebullient first breath she took at birth — a breath of good Tryon air. She looked at the world and found it good, and she has seen no reason to change this viewpoint.
