time," he added, "it marks the beginning of what we believe we will be a new era in North Carolina's efforts to meet the special needs of our children."

The office for Children will concentrate its efforts in four primary areas. They are:

--Services for all pre-school children who want or need services, including health services and quality child care.

--Services that are complementary to public school programs with emphasis on support systems for children with special needs and their families.

--Assistance to all children and their families in obtaining services which are available and to which they may be entitled.

--Assistance to consumer, religious, civic and professional organizations, at both the State and local level, in promoting and developing interest and action in behalf of young people.
