Marshall's feeling is that the civic clubs did not have a legitimate gripe in the first place because "everything that was done was approved by the black community," he said.

Vernon Baron at Bloom Park said he taught swimming at one time and had a WSI which he says "I let it go." Baron was more concerned about low wages. "My biggest complaint is that the salary isn't what it should be," he said. However, he agreed that WSI certificates are not necessary for pool managers. "Managers mainly coordinate and schedule activities."

Charles Eaton at Winston Lake says he is the only black pool manager with a WSI. He claims blacks do not take an interest in getting their WSI certificate. According to Eaton because of the civic club charges there is more of an integrated staff this year. "If you don't get more qualified blacks, we will end up with an all white staff," the manager for three years said.

There are at least two WSIs at each of the pools visited. The swimming classes average 30 to 45 youngsters. Black pools are crowded on free days. Free days have been increased to four times a week. On pay day, the attendance drops considerably.

The seasonal passes are said to be accessible to everyone. Marshall informed that seasonal passes and ID cards were established for city residents. He said "county people were causing white pools to be overcrowded. He said the ID cards were used specifically for free days. At the black pools ID cards are not necessary to get in on a free day.

Things are quiet now. Pool managers do not even know of the threat J.T. McMillan made about busing black children over to white pools. They were never approached about McMillan's attempt if there ever was one.
