FISHING

For Pleasure and Relaxation

By George Boole

Bait-casting plugs are in the variety as I afore mentioned. Let us take the medium runner or sub-surface plug which floats, dives when retrieved and returns to the surface when the retrieve is halted.

This plug can be made to chug-chug, zig-zag, and even skip on the surface of the water before diving. The stick-type which also looks like a torpedo, can be made to do a dipsy-doodle by adding a small shot on the tail hook shank.

The stick will cut up on the surface depending upon the action imparted by the fisherman and will stand on it's tail, due to the split shot weight, and just bob up and down, really tantalizing an old bronze back.

If one has the energy it is possible to fast crank a diving plug right down so it will bump the bottom. The new craze of crank bait calls for a different gear ratio which will take up more line than the conventional reel. There are also special plug designs that are made for shallow and deep running crank bait.

We can not leave out the spinner-type bait; a weighted body with spoon type blade to rotate or whirl, and a feathered or hair covered treble hook. The spinner can be made to skim across the surface, run shallow or deep depending upon the speed of the retrieve and can also be used as a jig.

To jig it one must jerk it off the bottom or whatever depth and allow it to fall back, warbling as it falls. Jigging is a fish getting method in salt as well as fresh water.

Spinners, small and large, can be used to catch any of the fresh water game fish; crappie, bream, white perch, white bass, and the most unpredictable bass, large mouth, that is.

Speaking of unpredictable bass and spinners I am reminded of a fishing trip down to the High Point City Lake. Coy Traynham and I shoved off from the dock, headed for a very grassy shoreline when we spotted a likely bass cover. We pulled and began casting without dropping anchor. While casting the boat drifted down against a fallen tree, which turned out to be a good structure for a smart bass.

We heard a splash, looking under the cover we saw a lunker of a bass fanning her bed. There was no possible way of reaching her from our position so we paddled quietly around to the other side of the tree.

I held on to a branch of the tree and allowed Coy to work a spinner over that bass. He jigged a Shyster directly over the bed. The bass hit and was hung. Coy tighten up on the fish and tried to pull it into a move advantageous position. His line broke, leaving the lure hanging from the lip of the fish. He tied on another spinner and proceeded to jig over the fish again. This fish was in the clearest water possible, every move that it made could be observed. It moved around getting madder by the minute. The bass struck again.

Coy had the fish on again and inspite of all his know-how that bass ended up with two lures hanging out of it's mouth.

Bass do not frighten easily, that's for sure and the afternoon proved that jigging a spinner can get results.

Pee Wee's Win League Title

The Red Shield Boys Club Indians, Jr. Pee Wee's won the league title by defeating a hapless Greensboro Boys Club 36-0.

The boys are 9 and 10 years old who compete with teams in two divisions of 7 teams each. A division title will be decided on November 1, 1975 when the Jr. Pee Wee's meet the O'Henry Lions of Greensboro, N.C. Coach Joseph Adams team has been unscored on in regular season play. They remained in first place throughout the season inspite of two overtime losses on yardage. Our defense and offense has been superb. We are continuing at the same pace of work, he said. We look forward to the Sertoma Bowl November 15, but we are taking one game at a time he said.
