FISHING

For Pleasure and Relaxation

by George Boole

Fishing the Tom-Lex City Lake is becoming a regular thing with some of our local fishermen. The boating and skiing on the Belews Creek Lake is turning them off. You will understand this if you have ever been swamped and annoyed by the wake of a fast boat operated by an individual with no regard for his fellow sportsmen.

Salem Lake is by far the best local lake for game fishing, but ten horsepower motors are the limit for use on the lake. Getting back to the Tom-Lex Lake (Thomasville-Lexington), Hairston Burrell continues to make good catches of crappies. Burrell is becoming proficient at crappie fishing too, he fishes for crappie like there are no other species in the lake.

Maybe a point system that would affect one's driving license would slow those reckless boat operators down. A boat operator who would jeopardize the lives of others on the water would certainly endanger the lives of fellow highway travelers.

The lives of fishermen are more important than the desire of a maniac to satisfy his ego. Anyway, the fishermen was there first. His fees paid for the launching ramps and right-of-ways long before boats were put into the hands of careless operators.

The State Wildlife recently asked the county to give the enforcers more latitude in controlling the no-wake rules on the Belews Creek Lake. Here is hoping that the county concedes.

One can come by some good crappie fishing even though the waters are still a bit warm. The fall fishing season is just getting started and some good fishing is in store for those who will not be faint-hearted about a little chilly weather. Crappies should be found around brush and weed beds. If they are not there they will be just off the structure in deeper water.

Ordinarily, at this time I fish just 18 inches deep. If no action, then I set my rig to fish deeper until I find the fish. I drop my bait to the bottom then raise it about a foot off the bottom. If I get no action there I raise the bait a foot at a time until I locate the fish.

Whatever the distance that you finally begin catching fish, use that at other holes because that is where the fish will probably be feeding over the entire lake; unless there is a pressure change or storm impending.

If you are lucky enough to possess a fish finder and you know how to operate it that is knowing how to read depths and structures, you are in business. Fish Finders will give readings of sunken objects, such as boulders and road beds, and even schools of fish.

If you use any method at all for finding depths and structures, it will be worth your while. Getting a fix on the proper fishing depths will be altered with affecting changes in weather or atmospheric conditions.

Neal said he is in agreement with President Ford that the federal government should do nothing to prevent default. However, he said the government must respond to any crisis which threatens to cut off essential services or spread to other parts of the country or the economy.
