

A Step Into The Past

Colonials Take Over Cook School

by Azzie Wagner
Staff Writer

Walking into Cook Intermediate School Friday, Nov. 20, 1975 was like stepping into the past. Only the people were as modern as the "six million dollar man".

Mrs. Glenda Wagoner's 5th Grade class, assisted by parents, engaged in a "corn husking bee" and made a beautiful colonial wreath from shucks of corn. Mr. Nash's and Miss Poole's classes got a taste of real sassafras tea, sourdough bread, apple butter popcorn, old fashioned ginger snaps, colonial nut breads, gingerbread and many more treats.

Finally, the very epitome of the gala day was the colonial day meal served in the school cafeteria. It consisted of: Georgia Meat Loaf a la mode, Creole Turkey Pie, Louisiana Blackeyed Peas, Carver Glazed Yams, Colonial Buttered Rolls, and a Dipper of Milk.

...And that's the way it was Nov. 20, 1975 for 200 years past!...
