ENERGY SAVING IDEAS

Tips To Help You

Ground water is warmer throughout the winter months and cooler in the summer than surface air. This means that if you have a well on your property, or have one drilled, it may not only save you money on water bills, but also supply a significant source of heating and cooling energy.

Seventy percent of the nation has ample supplies of underground water to operate residential and commercial heat pump systems. Only three gallons per minute are required for each ton of air

NEWS OF HEALTH

The Brain
The brain represents only 2 percent of total body weight, yet it consumes 20 percent of the oxygen and 65 percent of the glucose available in the circulation to the entire body.

Brain cells magnified 125X. That's the report of Fred B. Charatan, M.D., who is perhaps the world's leading authority on the effects of aging on the brain and on behavior.

About half the cases of acute confusion in the elderly, according to Dr. Charatan, are due to causes outside the brain. Among the most common are cardiac failure, pulmonary disease, anemia, and liver failure.

Dr. Charatan's article, "Acute Confusion in the Elderly," appeared recently in Health Practitioner magazine in New York. The doctor is chief of psychiatry at the Jewish Institute for Geriatric Care, New Hyde Park, N.Y.

"With diabetes mellitus so common in the elderly," says Dr. Charatan, "it is essential to carry out a blood sugar examination in every case of acute confusion. Acute confusion following anesthesia and major or minor surgery is not uncommon. Eye operations are notorious for this. But most elderly patients who become acutely confused because of a physical illness, says the psychiatric expert, "recover completely with the correction and removal of the underlying cause."

conditioning, or 12,000 BTU of heat. The system is non-polluting and the water can be replaced underground to be used again.

Considerably less electrical or fossil fuel energy is consumed with this system than with the more common air-to-air heat pump or conventional air conditioning and heating units. The ground water heat pump is not a new idea, and now the rising cost of coal and oil make its use an attractive alternative.

The initial investment in a ground water heat pump system would normally pay for itself, as a result of a sharp drop in energy consumption, within two years if an existing well is available, or in four to six years if a new well must be constructed.
