Sydney Hibbert presents workshop in theatrics

Sydney Hibbert, 1983 Los Angeles Drama Critics Award actor, master-teacher and theatre director, will offer a workshop called "The Actor as Instrument" at the Hanes Community Center June 11 to July 15 with a culminating performance at Winston Square.

Designed for the professional actor, advanced student and teacher, the workshop is a master class and an indepth theatre experience using the integrated-arts approach. Drama, dance, movement, music, poetry and dramatic literature are explored to define for the participant an individual approach to the development of discipline, emotional stimuli, response and intensity. The instrument -- body, voice, speech and emotional placement -- is explored for balance and total projection, the embodiment of perception, skill and potential.

Hibbert, who is currently on the drama faculty of the North Carolina School of the Arts, is a licentiate of The Royal Academy of Dramatic Art and The Guildhall School of Music and Drama, London. He holds a master's degree in speech communication and theatre arts from Illinois State University. A two-time drama award recipient of The Arts Council of Great Britain, he also received the Shakespeare Characterization Award at the Croydon Arts Festival in London. He has performed and taught extensively in the United States, East London and the Caribbean.

Enrollment for the workshop is limited, with the emphasis on individual participation. For further information, call 723-7907.

Sprayer needs care

Proper care of your garden duster or sprayer will keep it in working condition and extend its life.

completely dry, then lightly oil the plunger rod and replace it in the tank.

North Carolina State University extension specialists suggest that dusting equipment should need no maintenance as long as it is kept dry, although it might be a good idea to put a drop of oil on the plunger rod occasionally.

Sprayers require more care -- particularly cleaning care. Even stainless steel sprayers need this attention.

The sprayers should be washed out three times after each use, using clear water. This will prevent the corrosion that often renders pressure sprayers useless after only a few seasons.

For metal sprayer tanks, put in a tablespoonful of household ammonia and shake it thoroughly to neutralize the corrosive effects of any insecticide residue. Allow the sprayer to

It is particularly important that gardeners not use the same sprayer for herbicides (weed killers) as they do for insecticides. If you use liquid weed killers, you will need a separate sprayer for that job alone.

It is almost impossible to remove 100 percent of the herbicide residue from tank, hose and nozzle, and this tiny bit of herbicide residue could severely damage plants when the same tank is used for an insecticide.

Sprayers used for herbicides require thorough cleaning to prevent corrosion. Many of the herbicides contain salts that are very corrosive to metals. Also, be careful where you clean these sprayers. Cleaning water shouldn't be poured where it can damage plants or lawn grasses.
